Wage Bill Loses, Deal Hit Again

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—The House Rules committee, ignoring President Roosevelt's insistence on enactment of wage-hour legislation at this session, refused today to grant the revised wage-hour bill right-of-way to the House floor.

This action, which House leaders said virtually meant the death of the measure for this session, came at the close of two days of hearings during which the committee heard the bill defended as necessary to halt a "vicious spiral of deflation" and denounced as "arbitrary and capricious."

The bill would have fixed minimum wages at 25 cents an hour for the first year, scaling up to 40 cents at the end of three years. Hours would start at 44 per week and drop to 40 in two years.

Chairman O'Connor (D) of New York, said the vote was 8 to 6 against letting the bill reach the floor.

Officer Killed By Hit-Runner

Saved, She Takes Officer to Hospital

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt narrowly escaped injury today and a policeman, escorting her car, was hurled from his motorcycle in a crash at Sterling and Cabot streets, Roxbury.

Only the quick thinking of Mrs. Roosevelt's chauffeur, who swerved the machine to the left away from the path of an approaching five-ton truck, saved the First Lady and her two women companions from injury.

As the officer, Thomas F. Johnston, 45, of West Third street, South Boston, attached to the Roxbury Crossing station, rose to his feet in a dazed condition, Mrs. Roosevelt jumped out of her machine and ran to his assistance.

"Come right in here . . . come right in here," she told the officer, motioning him to her machine.

Explains Her Stand On Divorce

Emphasizing that she was making "no answer to any person," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt again declared today that in her opinion "divorce is necessary under certain circumstances."

Under fire of the Massachusetts League of Catholic Women, which charged she "outraged decency" by "accepting" divorce, the First Lady of the Land arrived in Boston today to make an address for the Simmons College Alumnae Gift Fund at Symphony Hall.

Two hours after her arrival at

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—Some strength appeared in today's stock market after a morning relapse which dented leaders fractions to $1 or more a share.

TAKES HIM TO HOSPITAL.
The officer limped into the front seat of the car, next to the chauffeur, and the auto sped to City Hospital. Johnston was found suffering from a back injury and was held for further x-ray treatment.

Mrs. Roosevelt had left the Whittier Health Center only a few minutes before the crash occurred. She had made the trip there without a police escort, but Officer Johnston had been assigned to pick up the cavalcade of official cars at that point.

GREETED BY MAYOR

With Mrs. Roosevelt in the car were Mrs. Alexander G. Grant of Bay State road, Back Bay; the former Catherine Delano, a first cousin of the President, and Miss Mary Winn, WPA nursery school project supervisor, who supervised Mrs. Roosevelt's inspection tour of the health center.

Mayor Tobin and School Committee Chairman Henry J. Smith were among the officials greeting the President's wife in Roxbury.

Police said the driver of the car which crashed into the officer was Oveila Poirier of Garfield road, East Dedham. He was proceeding along Sterling street. Mrs. Roosevelt was on her way to the Army Base, South Boston.

Pope Issues New 'Call to Colors' for Jesuits

Pope Pius

VATICAN CITY, April 29 (INS)—Pope Pius today called upon the powerful Society of Jesus—whose members, the Jesuits, are especially dedicated to his service—to intensify the battle against "those who dare to proclaim war against God."

The 81-year-old Pontiff told 160 Jesuits, who have been leaders of the church's fight against Communism and Nazism:

"We have always been confident in the glorious work of the Jesuit fathers, especially in times like these, when so many not only forget the reign of God, but act against God and even dare to proclaim war against God."

"We are sure you will continue the great work which you have always carried on for the greater glory of the church."

"We are burdened with many miseries," the Pope concluded, "and there are many enemies who do not want the reign of Christ on earth."

La Follette Rushes Third Party Program

MADISON, Wis., April 29 (INS)—Gov. Philip F. LaFollette headed into the Iowa corn belt today in a swift move to spread the doctrine of his new national party designed to "multiply wealth by hard work."

Shortly after launching the National Progressives of America before 5000 cheering adherents here Governor LaFollette left to make a radio address at Des Moines today.

Other talks have already been scheduled, with the apparent idea of a campaign to organize the party speedily and win a showing in the congressional elections this fall.

An intensive drive in California will follow Iowa, and then the campaign will shift to Illinois, the Dakotas, Minnesota and Nebraska.

Although a self-acknowledged leader of the party, LaFollette made known no personal ambitions.

LAGUARDIA ENVOY

The support of national leaders was not claimed. None appeared at the rally with the exception of A. A. Berle, assistant secretary of state, reputedly a representative of Mayor LaGuardia of New York city.

The governor sketched in only a general platform for the party.

He laid down six basic principles and asserted the party would drive toward prosperity through production rather than what he termed "the New Deal philosophy of scarcity."

In launching the new party, the 40-year-old governor repudiated Socialism, Communism, Fascism and "old-fashioned capitalism."

ATTACKS DEAL

LaFollette's break with the New Deal was evident when he attacked its economic policy.

The governor's speech was delivered in the university livestock pavilion. The audience came from all parts of the mid-West and many Eastern and far-Western states in response to his call, sounded last Friday, for a new movement to supplant the New Deal.

Who of major national importance is with LaFollette in his political adventure was not disclosed. His brother, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, already has announced his support of the governor. Mayor LaGuardia, a LaFollette lieutenant, indicated he is going along with the new party. LaFollette based his sudden move into the national arena on a philosophy of production as opposed to what he termed the New Deal philosophy of curtailment.

SCORES BOTH PARTIES

He blasted both Republicans and Democrats, saying that for ten years they have been fumbling the ball.

"The real division in America today is not between the Republicans and Democrats," the governor continued. "It is between the earners on the one hand and the collectors on the other."

"If the task before us could have been achieved by brilliant leadership, supported by great popular confidence and affection for that leadership, then the job would have been done long ago under the administration of President Roosevelt."

3d Party Talk Here in June

Members of the Massachusetts branch of the new National Progressives of America, new political party sponsored by Governor Philip F. LaFollette of Wisconsin, will hold a convention in Boston next June.

As forecast in the Boston Evening American last month, the group in this state plans to run Robert J. Watt, former secretary of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor, as a candidate for governor.

J. P. Morgan Takes First Plane Trip

GLEN COVE, N. Y., April 29 (AP)—J. P. Morgan, the 70-year-old financier, made his first flight Thursday—a short hop from his estate here across Long Island Sound to New Haven, Conn., roughly about 45 air miles.

With his son, Junius, the elder Morgan boarded an amphibian at 4 p. m. and flew to the airport at New Haven. He returned by the same plane just before midnight.

Ford Drops In on J. P. Morgan

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—Henry Ford, who from time to time had criticized Wall Street bankers, rode downtown from the Ritz-Carlton Hotel today and paid J. P. Morgan a visit.

Accompanying him to the financial district was W. J. Cameron, Ford Motor Company executive and press relations counsel.

Ford made the excursion to the J. P. Morgan and Company offices after a brief shopping trip with Mrs. Ford.

Morgan representatives said the industrialist frequently called on the elder Morgan when he is in New York, and that there was nothing unusual or significant about today's call.

Ford dropped in casually today, was ushered into Morgan's private office, shook hands with the financier and chatted briefly.

On the way out he passed the office of Thomas Lamont, another partner, whom he has known for years.

Ford stopped, shook hands with

Ask 250 Million 'Priming' Boost

(Copyright, 1938)

WASHINGTON, April 29—In a new move to broaden its recovery program, the administration today asked Congress to increase the proposed $450,000,000 PWA grant and pump-priming fund to $700,000,000.

The step was taken to make way for numerous authorized federal and national defense projects for which no funds have been appropriated and to increase the amount available to states and cities willing to match a 45 per cent federal grant with a 55 per cent local contribution.

At the same time it was proposed to reduce the $550,000,000 PWA loan fund originally requested in President Roosevelt's recovery message to $300,000,000, with the expectation that nearly all of it will be used for interest-free federal loans for the entire cost of projects in communities prohibited by constitutional or statutory limitation from incurring or increasing their debt.

Administration spokesmen said the change, while leaving the ultimate burden on the treasury at the $1,000,000,000 figure demanded by the President, not only would permit more pump-priming, federal construction, but make possible an increase in the number of federal grant-local contribution projects that could be started.

The proposal was laid before the House appropriations committee, now engaged in drafting the omnibus recovery bill, and is slated to be approved.

Lindys Pack, Move Soon

SEVENOAKS, Kent, England, April 29 (INS)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today started packing to leave England and take up residence on the island off the coast of Brittany which the flyer recently bought.

Lamont and said a few words. Then he departed.

Ford last night gave the nation's newspaper publishers and the public something to mull over—a few puzzling sentences in which they sought to discover his personal opinion of the national administration. Ford lunched with President Roosevelt Wednesday.

One sentence, delivered to a ballroom full of publishers who awaited a pronouncement and heard, instead, a 25-word riddle, was this:

"We are all on the spot, and stick to your guns and I will help you, with the assistance of my son, all I can."

'Gas Ulster' Talk Stirs Eire

DUBLIN, April 29 (INS)—Wild disorder took place in the Dail Eireann today when Martin Corry, deputy from East Cork, proposed Eire let loose a flood of poison gas over the Ulster border.

Corry made his suggestion during debate on the new agreement between Great Britain and Eire. Pandemonium ensued.

When order was restored, Prime Minister de Valera officially branded Corry's remark "an utterly irresponsible statement."

F. D. R. Asks Larger Age Pensions

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP) — President Roosevelt asked the Social Security board today to study methods of improving the Social Security act, including liberalization and extension of the old age benefit system.

The President told a press conference he had written A. J. Altmeyer of the board asking that the revised program be put in shape for action at the next session of Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt said he requested the board to consider the question of commencing old age benefit payments earlier than January 1, 1942, as now provided.

He also asked a study of larger benefits for those retiring within the next few years under the pension system, and also of larger benefits for widows and children.

The President said successful operation of the act showed it was "soundly conceived."

$500 Month To La Cava Boy

LOS ANGELES, April 29 (AP) — Gregory La Cava's support of his 13-year-old son was raised today by court order from $125 to $500 a month.

The film director, Superior Judge Leslie E. Still said, had been voluntarily paying the $500 until recently, thereby "pegging the standard at which he wishes his son to live."

Mrs. Beryl La Cava, the divorced wife, had testified she needed at least $850 a month to develop the boy's personality.

La Cava's suit for his son's custody will be heard May 5.

Commuters Fight Rail Fare Boost

Hundreds of commuters in Wellesley and stations west joined today in protesting a proposed 20 per cent Boston & Albany fare boost, with tentative plans made for a mass march on the State House.

The fare boost is sought, it is charged by the protestors, to guarantee high dividends to stockholders.

Low-salaried typists, clerks and other commuters joined with civic organizations in demanding a public hearing after the Framingham Chamber of Commerce trained its guns on the railroad.

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Abraham C. Webber, public utilities commissioner, said that the increase could be granted only by proof that the road's financial condition warranted.

The boost, which would take $100,000 a year from commuters west of Newton, was labeled by the Framingham Chamber of Commerce as a plan to make local commuters pay the expected $100,000-a-year cost of operating four luxury Chicago-Boston trains without extra fare for de luxe accommodations.

Secretary John Paul of the Chamber said:

"Why don't they want to increase the fares east of Wellesley—this, of course, wouldn't do, for they enjoy a 10-cent ride to Boston, and there's competition.

"This means some of our commuters must go without lunches to pay for the stock dividends."

N. Y. CENTRAL CONTROL

In amplification of the bulletin mailed to hundreds Paul stated the Boston & Albany is under lease to the New York Central road. He explained the Central, by terms of the lease, guarantees 8½ per cent dividends on common stock with a par value of $100. The stock has been quoted at $74, making the annual yield more than 12 per cent.

The price of Framingham 60-ride monthly books will be increased from $11.49 to $13.79 under the proposal.

Anglo-French Parley Marks Off Deadline to Check Nazi Coups

By KINGSBURY SMITH

LONDON, April 29 (INS)—A new western frontier beyond which Germany will be forbidden to trespass was created today by France and Great Britain simultaneously with adoption of a program to check Nazi expansion in Central Europe.

Already bound by a new defensive military alliance, the most formidable ever drafted by the two powers, Britain and France laid down the new deadline extending from the border of France through those of Belgium and the Netherlands.

The line is later to be extended to include Switzerland, creating an unbreachable wall along Germany's entire western frontier.

In the joint interests of mutual defense and European appeasement, Prime Minister Neville

Chamberlain of Britain and Premier Edouard Daladier of France agreed upon the new set-up in the second day of their momentous discussions at 10 Downing street.

The two-day conversation ended at 5 p. m.

BRAKE ON GERMANY

They pledged that should Germany invade Holland, as well as Belgium, this will be regarded as a hostile act against Britain and France, necessitating immediate dispatch of British forces to France as a precautionary measure.

In such an eventuality, Britain would immediately send a fleet of bombers across the channel, followed by ten battalions of troops totaling 10,000 men.

The new agreement is expected to act as a strong brake on any attempted German aggression. German military strategy today is said to call for a march through Holland—a nation whose neutrality was respected in the last war—in event of any new conflict.

So there shall be no delays in arranging unified commands, as there were in the Great War, Britain and France agreed that a French generalissimo will command the combined armies, and a British admiral their navy.

The air forces will also be under British command, but both countries will have representatives on the general staffs of the three united services.

The plan to prevent Nazi expansion at the expense of Czechoslovakia and other central European nations involves economic aid to those countries—a move already agreed upon by Chamberlain and Daladier it was learned.

ECONOMIC DANGER

Following a warning by France that Germany's efforts to strangle Czechoslovakia economically with a view to making it a vassal state of the Reich are now more serious than the danger of an actual invasion, Britain agreed to take drastic action.

Chamberlain, it was revealed, let A. be known that his government will finance French purchases of machine guns and anti-aircraft guns from central European countries as well as shoes from Czechoslovakia and wheat and oil from Hungary and Rumania.

By this stroke France will obtain both peace and war-time materials that she needs, Germany will be prevented from obtaining these products and the Central European nations will obtain funds with which to resist the Nazi expansionist drive.

Cite Money Promise in Dolan Case

Gifts and gratuities of money were promised prospective jurors in the case against Edmund L. Dolan, former city treasurer, and J. Walter Quinn for not guilty verdicts, according to answers by the district attorney's office to defense interrogatories.

Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle made the answers public today.

In them he said the alleged conspiracy which resulted in contempt of court charges against Dolan, Quinn and five others was formed about March 21 and "was in existence up to and including April 20."

On Monday, Doyle and counsel for the defendants will go before Superior Judge Frederick W. Fosdick to decide if further answers should be made by Doyle, there having been no replies made to some of the interrogatories propounded.

Observers attributed the delay to reinforcements that grounded insurgent aviation and bogged down motorized equipment.

Harvard Man Paints Fascist Future Here

Fascism "could happen here" in less than five years, according to George S. Petrie, instructor in government at Harvard.

Just how it would happen Mr. Petrie revealed in a "prophecy" issued through the Harvard Alumni Bulletin today.

"We shall be Fascist," he declared, "when we are defeated in our faith in democracy. The defeat of democracy comes when citizens feel confused and frustrated by the multiplicity of complex issues thrust at them. They find they simply cannot make up their minds."

"When problems cannot be solved, we learn to avoid them. Fascism avoids all problems at once by finding a single false answer. We decide it is better to let a few men who can devote their time to it, who have some real or pretended principles, to guide their decisions, settle everything for us."

Fascism, then, it comes, will come rather peacefully, according to Petrie.

Ulster-Eire Union Predicted by Shaw

LONDON, April 29 (INS)—George Bernard Shaw today moved his stage back to what he calls "John Bull's other island" and cast himself in the role of "President of Ireland."

The white-whiskered playwright prophesied that "within a few years" Ulster would be "only too pleased" to join in a united Ireland.

Shaw, who first saw the light of day in Dublin, put himself in the boots of Dr. Douglas Hyde, who is a practical certainty to be first president of the new state of Eire.

G. B. Shaw

But the idea of being president of Eire "doesn't appeal to me," said Shaw today in an exclusive interview.

"The ideal president should be just a figurehead, keeping out of politics and confining himself to the cultural betterment of his people," he said.

"GET CONCESSIONS"

"If I were president of Ireland," Shaw insisted, "I should do as Dr. Hyde is going to do—remain just a figurehead."

"That is what the ideal president is—just a figurehead. By that I do not mean any disrespect to the President of the United States."

"But I must confess I don't think I could forbear from urging Mr. de Valera to get all he can out of the Brits."

"This new Anglo-Eire agreement is all right so far as it goes, but as it will work out in practice you will find that the English get more than they give."

"So if I were president I fear I should urge the prime minister in the future to squeeze more concessions out of Premier Chamberlain."

Ireland, according to Shaw, has a double advantage over the neighboring island.

"Britain is a poor country," said Shaw, "because it cannot provide its own food. Ireland can, and therefore should make the most of it."

"As for defense, it is certainly to Ireland's advantage to have the help of Britain's strong navy and army as a guarantee of Ireland's independence."

"If I were president of Ireland, I should not worry too much about partition. The people of Ulster in a few years will be only too pleased to rejoin the southern counties."

"That solid and conservative and intelligent Catholic vote of the agricultural counties will be needed to offset the demands of the industrial people around Belfast, who are making attacks against private properties. If an Irishman holds anything dear, it is the right to develop his own private property. They fought for years for that ideal."

"The fact that Dr. Hyde is a Protestant does not matter. So long as he is a man of culture, he will encourage the cultural life of the people."

"That's what I would do. But I haven't got the job, so let's wait and see how the system works."

"Ask me about it again, say in 20 years."

Hitler Victor In Spain, Says Knickerbocker

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, April 29 (INS)—The costliest civil war in the history of the world is drawing to its close in Spain. Adolf Hitler has already won it.

The graves of one million Spaniards today present a new record for internecine slaughter, within 21 months.

No observers can predict correctly when the killing will cease, although it is now certain that a victory for General Franco will be proclaimed.

Hitler is the real winner, because:

First, without Hitler's threat to France and England, Mussolini could not have sent to Franco troops which have turned the tide of battle.

Second, without Hitler's threat both the Soviet and France would have sent the government of Spain sufficient help to win.

Third, Hitler's swift conquest of Austria finally led England and France to abandon neutrality in the Spanish war and open negotiations with Italy by which they acknowledge presence of Italian troops in Spain and by implication consent to their remaining until Fran's conquest is complete.

First Lady Reaffirms Divorce View

South Station, where she was met by her son, John, she told newspapermen at her hotel:

"I am acquainted with the criticism that was made against me with reference to what was quoted to be my stand on divorce."

On Tuesday Mrs. Charles Feehan, president of the Massachusetts League of Catholic Women, condemned Mrs. Roosevelt's tolerance of divorce and also criticized the President's wife for approving a motion picture on the birth of a baby.

NECESSARY AT TIMES

Mrs. Roosevelt asserted today that divorce was necessary and right under certain circumstances "when two people find it impossible to live happily and when their religious beliefs do not prevent it."

She then added: "That might be where I was probably misunderstood. I am not making any answer to any person."

Asked if she believed that Mrs. Feehan misinterpreted her, Mrs. Roosevelt replied:

"I am not the one to judge."

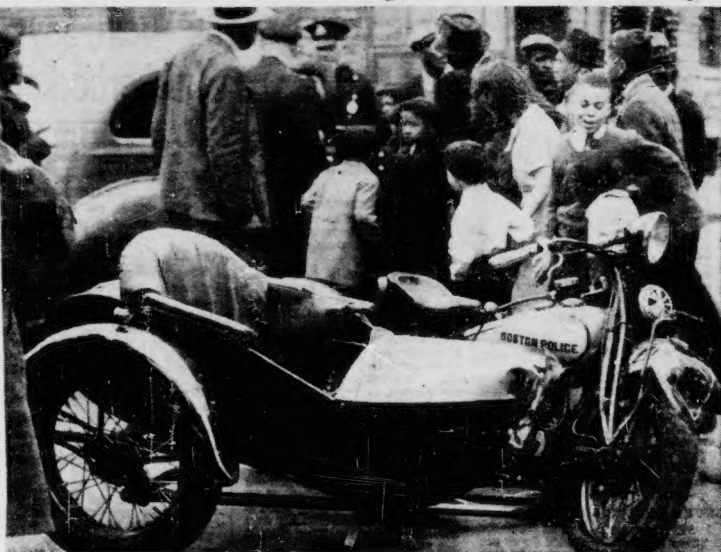

Referring to the motion picture, "The Birth of a Baby," the still pictures of which were banned in Boston, the President's wife declared it was "purely an education picture" and that it would do no harm if shown under regulations established "for showing it."

She explained regulations prevented anyone under 16 from viewing the film unless accompanied by his or her parents. She said the film could not be shown on a double bill with another picture of different character.

Smilingly, Mrs. Roosevelt explained that the picture was not shown at the White House because:

"You know, the President never sits through a two-hour picture." She declared that at first she thought the picture was a "short," but later learned it was seven or eight reels and would take more than two hours to show.

"It's funny," she added, "that so much was made out of the picture not being shown at the White House. It was just too long."

She said the picture was not "suggestive" but "scientific." She asserted that radio and movies must also be used for educational purposes and not solely for entertainment.

One of the educational aspects, she said, was that the film already had reduced the number of deaths in childbirth. The film, she said, was one means of reaching the lay people who don't read medical journals.

Asked if she would discuss divorce at her lecture tonight, Mrs. Roosevelt replied:

"Divorce is hardly a problem of youth. Youth thinks of marriage—not of divorce."

Her subject tonight is "The Problems of Youth."

But meeting squarely one of the most bitter controversies ever waged over her liberal views the First Lady pointed out that she would answer all questions during the designated period following her lecture.

Discussing divorce during the interview, Mrs. Roosevelt said: "I want to make it clear that I have not answered or objected to anything anyone has said. Any one has a right to his own opinion and to express it."

"I am acquainted with the criticism that was made against me with reference to what is supposedly my stand on divorce."

"I don't know where the assertion accredited to me was taken from. It might have been inferred from an article in a national weekly magazine."

"It was only a partial quotation. There was no real understanding, or it must have been a misunderstanding."

Nazis Charge Czech Plot on Europe's Peace

BERLIN, April 29 (AP)—Tension in German-Czechoslovak relations was increased today by publication in Der Angriff, organ of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, of a charge that Czechoslovak army officers had plotted a "monstrous attempt" on the peace of Europe.

Over a dispatch from Liberec, Czechoslovakia, Der Angriff printed these headlines: "Frisch! Frisch! Frisch! plot in Praha; 'German Putsch' planned for May first; criminal attempt on European peace."

The newspaper asserted that a group of officers of the Czechoslovak army belonging to the so-called war party had been preparing a plot which failed to materialize at the last minute only because of the witchfulness of a member of Konrad Henlein's sudeten German party.

Der Angriff's account of the alleged plot was.

On the initiative of the officers' group a German subject named Glaser, disfranchised and with a warrant out against him, succeeded in forming among the Sudeten (Nazified) Germans in Czechoslovakia a so-called "terror organization" against the Czechoslovakian state.

He also succeeded in forming what the paper described as "groups of three," supplying them with arms and orders to start a putsch against Czechoslovakia during the night of April 30.

Glaser then informed authorities of all towns and villages where he had succeeded in forming these groups. The police then received orders to suppress any attempt with the most brutal force.

Only through the watchfulness of the Sudeten German, said Der Angriff, was was prevented a catastrophe whose extent hardly could be imagined.

They will have a private party at "Immergruen" Sunday to recall the time when "Charlie," an ambitious young man of 21, was married to pretty Emma Dinkey, daughter of a Braddock, Pa., steel man.

Jersey City Bans Permit to Thomas

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 29 (AP)—Public Safety Director Daniel Casey denied today an application for a permit for a Socialist meeting tomorrow night, at which Norman Thomas was scheduled to speak.

Casey said the meeting might "tend to result in disorder and disturbance."

Hit-Run Driver Given 2 Years

LAWRENCE, April 29 (AP)—Judge Frederic N. Chandler today sentenced Harry G. Emmons, 57, Methuen salesman, to two years in the house of correction in connection with the hit-and-run death of three-year-old William Murphy. He appealed. A manslaughter charge was dismissed.

Prays for Baby; Gets Wagon, Too

PITTSFIELD, April 29 (AP)—Six-year-old Jimmy Dwyer prayed for a baby brother and got one.

He didn't pray for a new coaster wagon bearing the inscription, "Jimmy Dwyer Special," but he got that, too.

A mail order house, unable to fill Jimmy's request for a baby brother, sent the wagon along with a message, which said:

"We are just a little bit afraid we will have to disappoint you. You see, Jimmy, baby brothers are made to order, because they are just a little bit delicate to carry in stock."

"Some day, though, you may be able to get a brother if you wish hard for one. In the meantime we are sending you another gift."

The coaster had hardly arrived when Jimmy's mother went to St. Luke's hospital and gave birth to the brother Jimmy had prayed for.

KANE'S

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Great Newspapers, Economists, Women's Clubs, Customers, Manufacturers Praise The Idea Back Of

Kane's Mighty Drive To LOWER Prices

To Help More People Buy!
To Keep Factories Busy!
To Put Men at Work!
To Promote Prosperity!

HERE IS WHAT THEY SAY:

(Actual paragraphs from letters received by Kane's and now in Kane's files together with statements made to Kane's officials)

U. S. Dept. of Commerce Says:

"It is gratifying to learn of cases such as this in which individual initiative and courage are being exercised in dealing with business problems."

President Mass. Federation Women's Clubs Says:

"Your general plan meets with my approval and is directly in line with the program already approved at the general Federation of Women's Clubs' Board Meeting in Washington." Signed, Mrs. John H. Kimball, President.

A Celebrated Economist Says:

"Your plan is absolutely sound. It is the one which has lifted this country out of all previous depression periods."

2 Great Boston Newspapers Say:

"We approve of your plan, we believe it will help bring back prosperity and put men at work. We also will launch campaigns of our own to make your campaign N. E. wide."

Manufacturers Report Increased Employment:

Among others, one meter writes, "It [Kane's Drive] has already helped to stimulate business and aid prosperity . . . through your efforts our production has increased 20%."

Customers Are Loud In Approval:

The crowds that are visiting Kane's stores daily during this drive are unalterable proof of the importance of the savings being offered—and evidence of the approval accorded this plan by patriotic New Englanders. Every mail contains statements like this, "Should have been started before," "Will undoubtedly put men at work," "Will help thousands to have the things they want," "An ace all around blessing," and many others.

Kane's Idea Is This: (And it's working) 1. Kane's believe that what this country needs is more goods sold, more men at work. 2. Kane's believe that the only way to start goods moving is to sell them at lower prices than ever before. 3. Kane's have therefore sacrificed a large part of their own profit, utilized every resource of the $50,000,000 buying power at their command to batter prices down, to offer values so sensational as to blow the lid off of inaction, start people buying and wheels turning. 4. Kane's are now presenting, during their Mighty Drive To Lower Prices, SAVINGS of 30%, to 50% and EVEN MORE, and in some cases selling items at below usual wholesale cost.

See Pages 10 and 11 for actual examples of What Kane's Are Doing to Sell more goods, put more men at work, promote prosperity for all.

Our Thanks to Other Retailers Who Are Launching Similar Campaigns

See $100,000 Year Saved On Garbage

Asserting that a saving of at least $100,000 a year would be effected, the Boston Finance Commission today recommended to Mayor Tobin that city garbage and refuse collecting be done entirely by contractors.

At present five of the districts of the city—East Boston, Brighton, West Roxbury, Dorchester and Hyde Park—are under the contract system.

Collections in the other six divisions are made by city laborers.

CITY COSTS HIGHER. According to the Finance Commission, the cost per capita for collections by city labor in 1936 was $2.75, as against 83 cents in contract districts.

Cost per cubic yard of garbage and refuse was $1.50 by city labor as against 68 cents by contract.

The Finance Commission report, from which Commissioner Joseph A. Scapoloni disenta said:

"Officials in the sanitary division claim their staff is now so depleted that, to continue to guarantee regular collection, it will be necessary to make provision in this year's budget for 220 new laborers in the sanitary division.

TRUCKS FOR WPA

"This would mean a payroll increase of approximately $300,000. Transfer of this work to contractors would permit release of a large volume of city equipment, trucks, etc., for other work. Many of them could replace the hiring of truck equipment for WPA activities which have been costing the city approximately $500,000 a year."

Stokowski Agrees To Conduct Again

PHILADELPHIA, April 29 (AP)—Forty-one out of town engagements, including four in New England, were booked today by the Philadelphia Orchestra for the 1938-39 season, covering 28 weeks.

The orchestra association announced that Leopold Stokowski, who has been in Europe with Greta Garbo, had agreed tentatively to conduct during part of the season.

6 Indictments To Be Sought In Revere Probe

Indictments against four members of the Revere police department, one of them a high official, one of the city's chief executives and a Fitchburg man, will be brought by Attorney General Paul A. Dever next month before a special grand jury.

This was revealed today when Dever assigned Assistant Attorney General Maurice Goldman to present the cases, all resulting from the probe of the murder of Louis Gasta, Revere racket-man.

At the same time, Revere and Metropolitan police announced a drive to halt crooked games of chance at Revere Beach.

The Revere licensing board refused permits to six beach concessionaires as an opening gun in the drive.

"We do not propose to tolerate racketeering in any form at Revere Beach this summer," Captain John J. Murphy of the boulevard police declared.

Taxpayers Rap 5 Million Plan

The $76,171,000 budget reported by the Senate ways and means committee will saddle a needless $125 tax increase on Massachusetts communities, it was charged today by the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Association, Inc.

The committee rejected the House recommendation for a $10,000,000 expenditure of gasoline tax revenues for an unemployment relief program and substituted a $5,000,000 sum for highway construction.

The Taxpayers' Association stated: "The people of Massachusetts appear to have a free choice; whether it is better to play politics with human misery as the House proposes or by the method invented in the Senate ways and means committee."

Houses Made of Cotton Visioned for America

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 29 (AP)—Americans soon may be living in cotton houses, Dr. C. T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute of New York city, said here today.

Research workers in the near future will announce a pre-fabricated house with cotton cloth both inside and out, he said.

"We are hoping the experiment will open a vast new market for the output of textile mills," he added.

He said the houses would be of "considerably less cost" than present construction expenses for houses of equal size, convenience and beauty.

The cloth in the new houses will be on plywood with a steel base, he said. The cotton cloth will be laminated to the plywood.

"The cotton house will have every convenience of a modern home," he said. "The cloth construction will not interfere with either the modern heating systems or air-conditioning."

The entire house, including floors, will be covered with the cotton, specially woven and treated for the purpose.

FAMOUS FOR FLAVOR

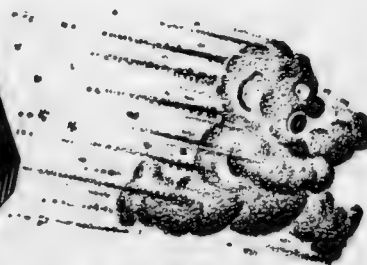

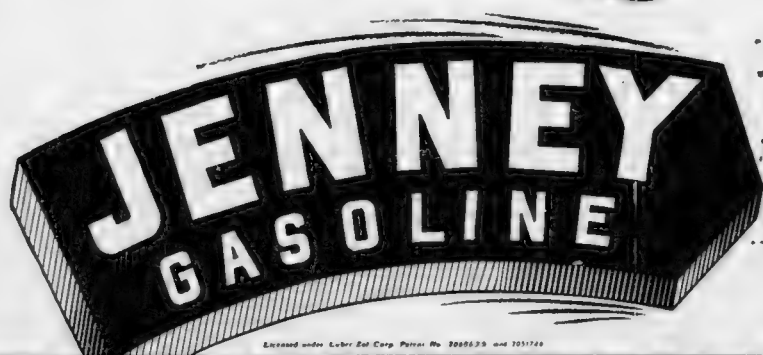

INSTANT, continuing success! Jenney Solvenized Gasoline—now one year old—is clicking with New England motorists because it clicks off faster, more powerful miles—and more of them per gallon.

It's easy to see why! Jenney is the only gasoline in New England that has or can have the patented Solvenized process. This processing, developed in a great engineering laboratory, protects upper-cylinder parts from wear, and dissolves gum, the binder of carbon. With its binder gone, hard carbon becomes soft so it can be blown out the exhaust by the normal operation of your car.

With hard carbon reduced by Jenney Solvenized, compression is improved and gasoline power which used to leak away is conserved and used. That's why Jenney Solvenized gives you far greater mileage, more power.

Start using this exclusive gasoline and its perfect teammate—Solvenoil, the Extreme Pressure Motor Oil—and get more for your driving dollar than ever before.

Girl Didn't Know Dead WPA Fiance Had $8450

Sorrowfully, Miss Mary Tansey of South street, Lynn, declared today she had planned "an early June wedding" with Thomas E. Collins, 42-year-old, Lynn WPA cemetery worker, who was revealed after his death Saturday to have saved $8540.

"I knew Tom had some money," Miss Tansey said, "but I didn't know it was that much. Now I don't know what will happen."

Bankbooks showing total deposits of $7260 and a war veteran's uncashed bonus check for $1250 were found among Collins' effects in his home in Western avenue by his lawyer and a relative.

Miss Tansey was believed to be one of the beneficiaries in a hastily scribbled "will" that Collins' attorney will attempt to probate. Collins' brother lives in Salem and a brother and sister live in England. Salem WPA headquarters ordered an investigation.

Resnick to War On Communism

A war on "isms" and Communist organizations in Dorchester and Mattapan was pledged today by William Resnick, newly-elected commander of the Herbert J. Wolf Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Dorchester, as he took office.

Other new officers of the post include Abraham Walsky, Nathan Freeman, Henry Markow and Abraham Pransky. The speakers were Colonel Joseph Hanken, Judge I. Ruby, Senators Burke and Brackman.

Court Slashes 2 Wives' Ties

Marital ties snapped today in Middlesex probate court as Judge Leggat granted uncontested divorces to two wives and continued the case of a third.

Nearly every day from the time they were married in March, 1935, until they separated in West Newton, Jordan Cumner of Newton was drunk, it was testified by Mrs. Margaret I. Cumner, also of Newton.

The exceptions were when he was in the hospital or a sanitarium, she asserted.

Mrs. Dorothy Ennis, Huntington avenue, Back Bay, won a divorce after she testified her husband, David, of Somerville, deserted her shortly after their marriage in 1932.

Continued, in order to hear one more witness, was the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Sawyer Eldridge, Cambridge, who charged Jonathan Eldridge, Chatham, with cruel and abusive treatment.

Blood Sought For Teacher

State police today used the telephone to ask aid for a Rochester, N. Y., teacher suffering with a rare streptococcus infection.

Fred J. Holcomb, teacher at the Genesee normal school, Rochester, needs a Type 2 or 4 blood donor, one who has recovered from the usually fatal streptococcus viridans.

Members of the faculty told state police $500 would be paid to any donor whose blood proved suitable.

Murphys Win!

Boston's Murphys won a victory today—and there won't be any "Murphy's Horseshoe Tavern" in Fremont street, South End.

At least not so far as Peter Anagnos is concerned.

Anagnos applied to the Boston Licensing Board for permission to change the name of his tavern. Many Murphys objected, however, and today the licensing board denied the request.

New Chug-Chug Auto Gets Test

A new steam automobile, modeled somewhat after the old Stanley Steamer, went through its first public paces in Cambridge and won many boosters.

With Gilbert Stevenson, Yale '36, at the throttle, the two-cylinder experimental model was fast in getting away at traffic lights, hit 25 m.p.h. from a dead start half-way up a hill, and backed up the hill at 35 m.p.h.

Stevenson, of Pelham, N. Y., is an associate engineer in the Newton company which is developing the car. Eric Deiling is chief engineer and they hope to have low-priced cars with eight cylinders on the market in less than a year.

WANDERER IDENTIFIED

A 63-year-old man, found wandering in Cambridge street, West End, today was identified as W. Knight of Chandler street, Belmont.

Counsel Silent On Dr. Williams

Attorney James W. Burke, counsel for Dr. David L. Williams, commissioner of mental diseases, stated Governor Hussey, while at the State House today in connection with the proposed dismissal from office that will be brought against Dr. Williams on May 2 by the governor and council.

"I'm not going to say whether we'll fight this or not," Burke said, regarding the action that was brought following the doctor's 11-month absence from his office because of illness. "I'm not going to say anything. And I wish you wouldn't keep saying 'ouster'."

Boys, Girls Rush Letters to Win Puppy

Little Robin, cute little cocker spaniel, was all perked up today in the contest that will get him a new home and make him a pal of some New England boy or girl reader of the Boston Evening American entered the home stretch.

Tomorrow at midnight is the deadline for boy and girl letters on the subject, "Why We Should Be Kind to Animals"—and remember the best letter wins the cute pup.

Any boy or girl in New England who is UNDER 15 YEARS OLD is eligible to contest for this pup, a descendant of the famous "Flush," whom you may have seen in the movie "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," with Norma Shearer and Charles Laughton.

Here are the simple rules: Write in to "Be Kind to Animals" Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winter square, Boston.

Note plainly on your letter your name, age, address, school, school grade and the name of your teacher. Mail your letter so it will carry a postmark not later than midnight next Saturday, which is the deadline.

(Boston Evening American Photo)

WAIT! I EAT!—This hungry puppy wants a master. Boy or girl who sends Boston Evening American best letter on "Be Kind to Animals Week" will win him. Write your letter now. Wouldn't he make great pal?

weeks-old Kreshingham's "Robinhood," the black and white spaniel that will prove a real pet for the fortunate youngster.

This merry pup has "Robin" for a nickname and is being raised at the fine Kreshingham Kennels in South Hingham, owned by Mrs. Herman Kresh. She specializes in the cocker spaniel breed.

Robin's ma was "Capeway Katrina" and his dad "Kreshingham's Taffy." His grandfather was the famous champion, "Idahurst Roderie," winner of many medals as one of the best cocker spaniels in the country, and "Flush" of the movies was his grand-uncle.

The puppy weighs nine pounds, is smart, full of life, likes to play, will love the water in company with his breed and can easily be trained as a field dog. He'll be a real pet.

So sit down, and compose, that letter right away. You may win "Kreshingham's Robinhood" for your own.

Kane's Store Will Repair Fire Damage

Officials of Kane's furniture store on Union street, Lynn, today moved for speedy repairs of the $50,000 damage caused by fire which swept the first floor of their four-story brick structure.

Thousands of persons jammed nearby streets to witness firemen's battle with the blaze. Fireman Thomas P. O'Neill collapsed from the heat while on duty.

Frank Gelb, 38, manager, who fought the flames before firemen arrived, was burned on the hands. Miss Dorothy Brennan, 25, of Jefferson street, Lynn, cashier, removed records and money from the store safe before she was forced to flee.

Firemen were forced to knock holes in the walls of the second store to furnish vents. All customers in the store got out safely.

Protest WPA Building Work

Charging that the WPA is the greatest competitor of America's building trades, which are "fighting for existence," the Building Trades Employers' Association today wrote Senator Lodge and Walsh and Massachusetts Congressmen to ask them to oppose the awarding of building contracts over $500 to the WPA.

"If we must, let competently trained contractors oversee the jobs," the letter said, "building contractors are fighting for their lives. Over 50 per cent of all construction is being done by the WPA under political management. It lacks proper control."

Business Chiefs And President May Confer

WASHINGTON, April 29 (INS)—President Roosevelt may invite to the White House conference table the 16 industrial and financial leaders who earlier this week pledged co-operation with administration efforts to restore prosperity.

Officials close to the President were of the opinion today that such a meeting might be the prelude to a government-sponsored program of planned production in industries.

Some months ago, Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he leaned toward some system of balancing production to consumption and cited the automobile industry as one that tended to overproduce.

In promising to cooperate with the President and Congress in the current campaign to halt the depression, the 16 business leaders expressed a willingness to work towards stabilization of their own industries.

For this reason, some of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers believe this group, which includes such figures as Owen D. Young, of General Electric, and Winthrop W. Aldrich, New York banker, could serve as a missionary organization in furthering the gospel of planned production.

U. S. Seeks Taxes Of Ex-Vice Queen

NEW YORK, April 29 (AP)—The government started suit today to recover from Polly Adler, former vice queen, $12,425.72 in unpaid income taxes and penalties.

The complaint said Miss Adler, also known as Joan Martin, in the years 1927 to 1930 inclusive filed income tax returns in Brooklyn setting forth no taxes were due from her.

Kennedy Voices Economic Warning

LONDON, April 29 (AP)—Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy said today that unless Britain and the United States found a solution of their economic problems, neither would be fit to live in.

The United States envoy spoke before the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, emphasizing the need for economic co-operation between the two countries.

Aid Magnified

Driver Amazes Self

William F. Hannigan of 76 Parsons st., Brighton, was amazed by the diversity of first aid service today when he crawled from his overturned automobile on Washington st., Newton.

He was greeted by a half dozen fire trucks, two police cruisers, an electric light company truck and score of helpful bystanders.

The reason: When Hannigan fell asleep at the wheel, his machine climbed a sidewalk, felled a fire alarm box, a police signal box, a U. S. mail box and knocked down an electric light pole before veering into a stone wall and overturning. Hannigan was uninjured.

Roosevelt In Plea for 2 Battleships

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today to appropriate $5,000,000 at once to start construction of two replacement battleships.

His request was included in a letter to Speaker Bankhead asking $5,592,000 for the navy department for the rest of the fiscal year ending June 30. The President's request was accompanied by a letter from Daniel Bell, acting budget bureau director, explaining use of the fund.

"These estimates," President Roosevelt wrote Bankhead, "include $5,000,000 to provide for the laying down of two additional replacement battleships, authorized by the act and approved March 27, 1934, in furtherance of the recommendations regarding the expansion of our national defense program, contained in my message to the Congress of January 28, 1934."

Naval sources said the President's action was separate from the big construction program contemplated in the $1,156,546,000 naval bill being debated in the Senate.

Two battleships are already under construction, and the regular Navy department supply bill signed by the President recently provided funds for two more.

Congressional approval of Mr. Roosevelt's request for $5,000,000 to start two new battleships would bring to six the total number to be used for replacements.

'Cut-Throat' Trucking Hit At ICC Quiz

Honest concerns are going into bankruptcy and "chiseling truckmen" are ruining the industry, Joseph H. Eastman and William E. Lee, representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission, were told by witnesses today as 1000 truckmen and officials attended the stormy opening session in the Hotel Mayflower.

The hearing, on rates and unfair practices in New England trucking business, is the beginning of an investigation of "chaotic" conditions in trucking in New England, New York and New Jersey that the ICC voted on April 12 to investigate.

Ralph H. Cahoon, representing the New England Rate Bureau, said the industry had been in chaos for two years because it could not enforce rates voted in conference, and that labor costs and social security had necessitated an increase in rates.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission must stop the rate warfare in New England before the industry is destroyed," he said. Dawson Ditt, general chairman of the New England motor rate conference, said some trucking concerns were transporting goods at less than cost in an effort to keep business. He said the business of his company had dropped 30 per cent this year.

Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly is among a large class that will receive the fourth degree in the Knights of Columbus next Sunday at Holyoke.

The degree will be conferred under the direction of John J. Delany, fourth degree master, and Patrick J. McNamara, state deputy of the Knights of Columbus, and John J. Spillane, state secretary.

Dime Ring Bride Wins Divorce From Engineer

Although her husband had $50,000 in securities and $5000 in the bank, he refused to allow her to ride on street cars because it cost 10 cents. Mrs. Germaine L. Sanders testified today in Probate Court in winning a divorce from Walter Keith Sanders, former Stone & Webster engineer.

Mrs. Sanders, 45-year-old former tennis champion of French Indo-China and once wife of a director of the Bank of France, was given permission to resume her maiden name, Germaine M. T. P. Langon, and was awarded $10,000 alimony, payable $200 a month.

The divorce, on grounds of failure to provide, ended a marriage that began only last October 25, when the couple wed at New York City Hall, she said, using a ring bought in a ten-cent store.

Since arriving in Boston they had been living in Clearway street, Bank Bay.

Try Constable As Gun-Toter

Constables, since Colonial times, have had the legal right to carry firearms. Judge Arthur P. Stone was told today in Cambridge court.

The assertion was made by Atty. Thomas F. Sullivan, counsel for Alfred Graber, 35, constable of the Cambridge Protective Patrol, who is charged with carrying a revolver without a permit. Judge Stone continued the case until May 6 for briefs.

Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy heatedly denied Sullivan's assertion that "There's a rotten background in this case."

Miss Doris Clinkard, of Franklin street, Melrose was chosen winner among 50 contestants entered by the club of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs competing for a two years' scholarship at the Leland Powers School here.

Protest Pay Cuts by Mills

Pay cuts of 12 1/2 per cent for 18,000 workers in woolen and worsted mills of four New England states were termed "unjustified and suicidal" today by the Textile Workers Organizing Committee in ordering protest mass meetings.

A CIO affiliate, the union joined with the Independent Textile Union of Woonsocket, R. I., in announcing:

"The manufacturers themselves will be responsible for any unfortunate situation which may be precipitated by their refusal to arbitrate these wage disputes."

Meanwhile, Franklin W. Hobbs, president of the Arlington Mills, Lawrence, asserted that the cuts are necessary "in order to meet competition and make it possible to remain in business."

In addition to the mill the Monomac Spinning Co. and the Pacific Mills in Lawrence, workers are affected in plants at Andover, North Andover, Lowell, Haverhill, Gloucester, Franklin, N. H., Peabody, R. I., and Rockville, Ct.

Suspend Gas Rate Increases

Rate increases proposed by the Boston Consolidated Gas Company and the Haverhill Gas Light Company were ordered suspended until June by the State Department of Public Utilities today.

The Boston rates were held over pending the outcome of a hearing of rates by city officials. The Haverhill hearings have been completed but the department will not render a decision until next month.

Old Starcho Billy Anderson had a gal show out in San Francisco of the Democratic national convention in 1920. The show was called "Fritivities," and if memory serves it was all of that and a quarter's worth more.

Well, among the Bronx's gals was a little redhead in the chorus who was purtier than a brand new twenty dollar bill. Her name was Helen something, and she had two lines to speak in the show.

We saw Helen the other night. She is plumper.

Helen's red hair is now slightly gray, but she still is good looking enough to cause one of those old Democrats to start putting out for the fact that she has a long-legged husband "lurking in the background."

His name is Jack Solomon, out of Catherine street on New York's East Side. He was a cask and suit fellow in the days of the gold rush which were the mid-twenties and he was getting around $200 per week for himself at his business at the age of 21, and giving the speaker a terrific play after hours. He met Helen at the old Commodore Club in East 53rd street, one night 13 years ago.

"Honey," Jack Solomon said, "will you marry me?" So they were married and lived happily ever after—or at least it looked that way when we saw Helen the other night, in the midst of her prosperity as co-owner of the restaurant known as Gallagher's.

That was Helen's name before she married Jack Solomon. She had been married and divorced from Ed Gallagher, of the famous team of Gallagher and Shean.

Helen was a young gal out of Lawrence, Mass. when she married Gallagher. She was once in a Polaris chorus. She was always mighty smart.

After she married Jack Solomon, they tried several ventures together, among them a place in Thirty-Fourth that was an awful flop and cost them all they had. Jack knew nothing of the restaurant business. However, he did have one good idea, which he divulged when they opened a small place on West Fifty-Second street, and Helen asked what kind of food they should serve.

"Steak," said Jack, firmly. "Let's stick to one thing. We always go broke on a lot of things."

Of course they did not do exactly that, but steak is the motif of the restaurant which they have just changed, until it is now one of the biggest establishments of the kind in town. They earned money from the jump, but Jack sterilized some of it by dropping $10,000 in a venture called the Flying Trapeze in West 57th street.

What happened there was the customers stayed away in alarming numbers. Jack went back to West Fifty-Second and Helen merely gave him a reproachful gaze.

Baering Down on the News

This leaves the League without a home office. Well, the outfit operated on a travelling scholarship anyway.

Switzerland ain't much more than a rock garden with a perpetual charade. But it's a tough little republic and can take care of itself like a wasp with a stinger on both ends.

Get Real Sailors

The Editor Says:

The whole program of the Administration, after wanton waste and futile experimentation, is: MORE INCOME FOR MORE TAXES, MORE TAXES FOR MORE SPENDING, MORE SPENDING FOR MORE VOTES, MORE VOTES FOR MORE EXPERIMENTS.

This cannot be called "planning."

Certainly nobody would define it as "statesmanship."

It is PSYCHOPATHIC GOVERNMENT.

It is sailing the Ship of State on a stormy sea without rudder or compass burdened with a supercargo of DEBTS and TAXES, and manned by a CREW OF IMPRACTICAL PROFESSORS.

Let us get back to common sense. Let us get REAL sailors for the Ship of State.

That is the ONLY WAY to recovery and prosperity.

A GREAT LOSS to Eastern and Southern Massachusetts would be the proposed abandonment of the Old Colony Railroad.

Coming at this time when the section along the Kingston-Greenbush route is making a valiant effort to emerge from the depression, the New Haven's petition to drop the line is particularly regrettable.

But let us not accept defeat. Let us see what can be done, then do it.

Naturally the New Haven cannot be expected to accomplish miracles. Yet, with proper co-operation from the Interstate Commerce Commission, the State and the affected towns and cities, a way ought to be found to keep trains moving on the Old Colony.

"THEY THAW QUICKLY!"—thus Paul Vincent Carroll, young Irish teacher who wrote the Broadway box-office smash, "Shadow and Substance," explains why American women are more charming than their European sisters.

"They knocked me out when I first saw them," he says. "They're full of femininity and are straightforward. It generally takes three hours to thaw out an English girl, and by that time you are no longer interested."

We hope Mr. Carroll will give his discovery proper publicity when he returns to Britain. This is the kind of goodwill we need abroad.

Too long has the world been educated to regard Americans as snobbish creatures, interested only in money-making.

We need friends like Mr. Carroll—friends who will go back home and say that we and our wives are normal human beings, good to know, good also to remember.

GOOD NEWS for Greater Boston is the strong probability that a huge new battleship of at least 36,000 tons will be built at the Fore River plant in Quincy.

Four to five years from the time the contract is awarded are usually required to complete a super-dreadnought. That would insure prolonged employment for hundreds of men at good wages.

Let us hope no time will be lost. Fore River is equipped to build a good ship and ought to build it. Also—and this is a convincing argument—the competent workmen in this part of the country can use the dollars Congress has appropriated for later.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

OUR Democratic Congress appears to have adopted the philosophy of the picturesque Percy Quin, of Mississippi, who always used to take off his collar when he spoke.

Percy generally voted for any old appropriation that came along, but being against a certain one, was exhorted by his friends to be a good sport, and stand by his principles. Said the quaint Mississippi:

"I am going to rise above my principles."

And so, the other day, we witnessed the amazing spectacle of Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn, rising above the principles of every Congressman of whom there is record, and reading to the House an anonymous letter he had received at the White House.

Now, everybody who gets an anonymous letter it relates to the waste basket. If it's anonymous, it's phony.

But Sam took this one, and tried to make it appear that a conspiracy was afoot to flood Congress with propaganda against the "bust and bankruptcy" spending bill which his boss, the President, has seized upon as a way out of the Roosevelt panic.

It reveals the desperation of the Democratic-New Deal coalition, the steps which a practical politician will descend to to keep his party in power in a campaign year in which the tide seems to be turned against it.

If the White House purpose in thus making use of an anonymous letter to the President is not to try to check at the source all use by the people of their privilege of petition, under the Constitution, it is difficult to see what the motive is.

The incident is trivial, and yet illuminating. Mr. Rayburn apparently accepted the anonymous communication without question. Of course, it might have been a "plant" by one of the numerous government publicity bureaus.

Incidentally, Mr. Rayburn, with singular lack of wisdom, had placed in the Congressional Record a copy of the proposed memorial to Congress which the anonymous correspondent of Mr. Roosevelt called to his attention.

That memorial, by the way, is a pretty fine thing, one to which every patriotic American could subscribe. It is in the Record of April 25.

Every American should get a copy of it, read it, and shoot it back to his Senator and his Congressman.

Doubtless Fred Vinson, of Kentucky, "rose above his principles," when he remained in the House for five months after having accepted a life-time job on the Federal bench at the hands of the President, to work night and day trying to put Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization and tax bills through.

Mr. Vinson is so fond of service in the House he owes it to himself to stay there.

He has greatly impaired his prestige as a member of the court of appeals.

Another one who rendered valiant service to the President in trying to put the Reorganization Bill through was Representative Lindsay Warren of North Carolina. It is said he is to be appointed comptroller general.

Such posts as this should not be given to members of Senate or House, who have been in a position to render political service to the President.

There are about 22 appointments to the Federal bench coming along, bye and bye. Members of Congress cannot be appointed to judgeships they have voted to create. But vacancies in existing judgeships can be created by a little switching about.

It is to be hoped that no member of Senate or House will be appointed to the Federal bench at this time.

It would not be a wholesome thing!

What of Today, Tomorrow?

All War Will End. Henry Ford Says

The Boston Evening American today presents the sixth in a series of exclusive articles disclosing Henry Ford's message to the people of America.

In his article published in Thursday's Boston Evening American, the motor magnate said John Garner would make a good President of the United States.

"The devil always finds some work for idle hands to do."

Change that word "devil" to Mars, the god of war, and you have Henry Ford's formula for world peace.

"World peace," said Mr. Ford, stretching his long legs before the fire in old Wayside Inn at Sudbury, "will come when we are ready for it."

As related in an earlier article of this series, that is Mr. Ford's philosophy of life. Life, says Mr. Ford, is the acquiring of experience.

All progress, he believes, is the result of development over a period of cycles, experience added to experience as a brick is added to a brick to form a finished wall.

"What do you think of William Randolph Hearst's suggestion that the nations of the world get together to agree to outlaw at least war's barbarities, the horrors of modern war, the bombing, especially, of defenseless women and children in civilian areas?" this reporter asked.

"It's a good starter," Mr. Ford declared.

Then he repeated:

"World peace will come when we are ready for it."

"Put men to work, and you will have peace."

"Easy, prosperous nations do not want war."

"It is only when men are idle and nations poor that their thoughts turn to war."

Ford tapped the arm of his chair thoughtfully. His is the homeliness, the simplicity, of an expression reminiscent of the country-store philosophers of an earlier day, sitting under the cracker barrel.

There is nothing dictatorial about the way he expresses his opinions. Rather, he at times seems curiously diffident, almost as though he were begging not to be agreed with, but to be understood. Time and again in the course of this long, five-hour conversation with Mr. Ford, this reporter "came to" with a start, suddenly realizing—and with what wonder!—that this simple, friendly man is probably the richest man in America to-day, giant of America's industrial giants!

There is nothing dictatorial about the way he expresses his opinions. Rather, he at times seems curiously diffident, almost as though he were begging not to be agreed with, but to be understood. Time and again in the course of this long, five-hour conversation with Mr. Ford, this reporter "came to" with a start, suddenly realizing—and with what wonder!—that this simple, friendly man is probably the richest man in America to-day, giant of America's industrial giants!

"Many times," said Mr. Ford, reverting to that strain of Emersonian mysticism that, apparently, runs all through his character, "we have had civilization equal to this—or better."

He repeated that "or better" several times, nodding his head.

"There've been wars," he said. "There's a war now." Probably there'll be wars again. But peace will come when we are ready for it.

"Always, the experience has been valuable. All experience is valuable. It's what we're here for. Even"—and here Mr. Ford grinned boyishly—"even if you get into trouble for it for the purpose of the experience."

"Always, something a little better grows out of it."

This reporter asked:

"What can we do, Mr. Ford, to further the cause of world peace?" The man who led the "Peace Ship" expedition more than two decades ago in a gloriously Quixotic effort to stem that appalling disaster that was then engulfing the world, said today:

"Teach our children not to be destructive."

THE PARENTS' DUTY He became suddenly very, very earnest.

"This may seem to you to be a little thing," he said, "but it will show you what I mean—and of course it is not a little thing; oh, not a little thing at all!"

Yesterday, I walked through the woods at Walden Pond. There is a cairn of stones there, and I put one on it—always I put one on it—and a bronze tablet to Thoreau.

That tablet is all defaced and scarred and denied and scarred by boys who have thrown at it."

For the first and only time in his reporter's conversation with him Henry Ford became really excited. Angriest excited. His eyes flashed, his face, normally composed or smiling, flushed and became set in stern lines. Even his voice, so quiet otherwise, loudened and lifted.

"Destructiveness," he said, hands waving for emphasis.

"Thoughtlessness, too, of course—but I can't help wondering what sort of parents those boys have."

"Parents should teach their children not to be destructive."

"Teach children to be constructive! Teach them to PRODUCE things. Teach them to respect the things that have been PRODUCED—the things that are USEFUL."

"The boy who is brought up to respect and love the useful, productive things of life will not, when he is a man, have any use for war, which only destroys."

TEACH USEFULNESS

"Men"—and, his composure recovered, Henry Ford's eyes winked—"men are only little boys grown up. They say that, don't they? Yes, I guess that's true."

"When I was a boy, I carried a little block of metal, and a file, in my pocket. When I had spare time I spent it working on that block, filing it perfectly smooth, squaring it, trying to make it perfectly true."

"Useless? Nothing is useless—nothing that keeps the mind and eye and hands busy PRODUCING something, even though that something be only a rough little block of metal that you have made square and true."

"Teach your children to MAKE things, not to BREAK things. Yes, that is something we all can do."

"World peace will come when we are ready for it. Teaching our children not to be destructive is one of the REALLY BIG things we can do NOW."

What is Henry Ford's idea of a proper tax program for America? His is a formula that will startle New Deal theorists considerably, perhaps cause you to wince your head in agreement with him. Read it in the next article of this series, in TOMORROW'S BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

Girl About Town - by Ann Marsters

THE circus is coming to town. Fra-la! But it's not the kind of circus so many of you probably associate with a bag of peanuts and a cherished quarter in a small boy's fist.

It's an ultra-ultra streamlined deluxe affair. It is, really, a colossal theatrical production, with the latest thing in fashions and lighting effects. It's a show such as Ziegfeld might have been proud to call his own.

Seems it's no longer enough for the circus girls to don tight and a few gay angles. No indeed. At the Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey show (which opens here May 2) you'll see costumes and color-schemes designed by Charles Le Maire, who has done a lot of designing for Hollywood, as well as for George White Scandals and the Ziegfeld Follies. (And the costume bill alone was $80,000.)

Even Gargantua the Great does not escape the streamline era. Gargantua—the "largest and most ferocious gorilla ever held in captivity"—he stares out from his pure-white, modern cage, from his glorified, costly bars. (Does he feel like a sissy, we wonder, in his artistic seclusion? Does he have to take his bath in a DeMille bathtub?)

So 'The Greatest Show on Earth' has been what they call "revolutionized"—and we wouldn't miss it for the world.

No doubt your modern, streamlined children will like it, too.

IN THE MORNING MAIL: A note from Mrs. Bob Ott, whose husband's stock company was so famous several years ago. She tells us that Mildred Sacco, of Boston, who started with the Bob Ott troupe, has received an offer from Nicco Charnisse School of Dancing in Hollywood, to begin teaching there July 5th.

"Mr. Ott and myself are always so pleased when our very own youngsters make good in such a grand way," writes Mrs. Ott.

"Mildred Sacco and Ray Bolger started with us the same season, along with Collette Lyons, so I think we have reason to feel most proud of our Boston boys and girls."

Certainly the Ott's offered priceless opportunities to ambitious young people, such as the gangling Ray Bolger, when vaudeville was in bloom. And we wish Miss Sacco the best of luck in her Hollywood adventure.

*"I shot an arrow into the air—
So runs the well-known ditty,
And so I sent a note to you
In a far-off city."*

*"It felt to earth—? or did it fall?
Or did you ever get it?
Or did you scan its seven sheets
And casually forget it?"*

ANTI-CLIMAX DEPARTMENT:—A man who knows somebody we know, bought a beautiful, high-priced car to replace his old one, and planned to surprise his wife with it.

He drove proudly up to his door, and called his wife to take a look.

"It looks fine," she said placidly. "Did you just have it washed?"

SHOPPING HINTS:—Jordan's is having a marvelous sale of sterling silver—at 50 per cent off the original price. Standard patterns of Talmann Rose and Queen Mary. Very cunning sheer daytime frocks at Gilchrist's. Tucked marquisette, full skirts and piquet touches. If it's a new coat you want, you certainly shouldn't overlook the tremendous sale they're having at R. H. White. Every type of coat—dressy, casual, sport—and all for $11.50. The values run from $16.95 to $22.95.

My Opinion - by Hugh S. Johnson

WASHINGTON:—When I could barely talk, in a little town called Greenwich, Kansas, my mother tells me that she rescued me, backed up against her front door, from an angry circle of little playmates who were throwing bricks and cinders because I kept yelling at them even on my father's stoop.

"Lousy head! Lousy head! Everybody's a rink-stink except Hughie Johnson—and he's all right."

I try to get over this complex. It isn't easy to do. I know now the balm of the French philosophy "to understand all is to forgive all." It has seemed to me that the duty of a commentator in such a place is to say, from his experience and study, both what he thinks is right and what he thinks is wrong, no matter whom he hits or favors. But I often wonder if the rink-stink complex remains for me.

From my correspondence, I gather that the temper of the customers is in a reverse direction. You must either be all in favor of or all against my particular public policy.

The other day I wrote a piece expressing my sympathy with the awful responsibilities of the President, my reluctance to be always criticizing his proposals, and my personal affection for him as an old friend. I got panned for that in no fewer than 300 letters. According to them, I am getting soft. I am alienating my following.

General Johnson

THANKS TO ALL. It at least gives me a swell opportunity to make the position of this column clear. It is not a place for any kind of partisan political propaganda. It has no candidate and no formula, except its own, poor as that may be. It purposes to say what it thinks is right and what it believes to be wrong whether the actor is Stalin, Roosevelt or Mussolini—or even Hughie Johnson.

A constant criticism is that this writer was once a First New Dealer and is sore because he was thrown out on his ear. That is less than partly true. I left NRA in 1934 against the President's personal protest, as his holographic letter to me will establish, and I have his personal word that nobody supported him more effectively in 1936.

He and this column came to the parting of the ways on some major measures of economic policy after January 1, 1937, but that doesn't mean that I have joined forces with the Roosevelt-haters.

I don't have to. In the freedom of the American press, which still prevails, and the liberalism of the Boston Evening American, I am permitted to say whatever I please. And I wouldn't trade my job for anybody's.

What difference does it make? At best, you will find here only one man's opinion—and he has made as many mistakes in his limited field as the President ever did in an infinitely larger one.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON:—Representative Tom McMillan comes from Charleston, S. C., and when a large section of Congress junketed down there to see the Azaleas last week, some of Tom's colleagues poured it on thick.

The burden of their tribute was that no man on Capitol Hill wangled more of a larger pork grab for his district than Tom McMillan.

Even Republican Floor Leader Burt Snell joined in the chorus of admiration, while Representative Andy May of Kentucky said McMillan was so effective in garnering spoils that it was downright embarrassing for his less successful colleagues.

As the heavy oral buttering proceeded, Representative Maury Maverick of Texas became fidgety. Finally he could stand it no longer.

"The only thing the boys have missed is to kiss a baby," he remarked, whereupon he borrowed a little boy from a family in the crowd, marched up to the microphone and had McMillan kiss the youngster.

Maury Maverick

GARNER'S POKER:—When he entrained for the trip from Charleston to Washington, Vice-President Jack Garner adhered to his rule of retiring early. At 9 o'clock he locked the door of his compartment and went to bed.

But on the return trip, the Texan "broke training," staying up until 4 a. m. playing his favorite floor game—stud poker. As usual, Garner made a fine killing.

MERRY-GO-ROUND:—The Senate has received a communication from a gentleman named Fred Bull in Pasadena, California, saying that "it would make for the welfare of all the people if the United States Senate were abolished." . . . Organized Negro groups are lacking three bills in Congress to increase the number of Negroes in the Army. One calls for regular appointment of two Negro cadets each year to West Point. . . .

One branch of business which knows none of the nose-dives of recession is aviation. After doing export business in 1937 which was 71 per cent greater than 1936, makers of aircraft—chiefly military—have done a first-quarter 1938 export business 99 per cent greater than 1937. . . .

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A SHOCKING and deeply revealing thing happened recently. One of the most powerful and brilliant men in America was exposed and is now imprisoned as a common thief.

To many this crime seemed incredible...one of those monstrous mischances which can never touch our ordinary nature. Yet the most sinister part of the whole affair is this:

IT WASN'T abnormal. It is a natural, almost as inevitable result of our current conditions, and so widespread is its advance that it may betray any of us into abominable falsities and cruelties. As apathetic as though he were a tweeded Frankenstein, Richard Whitney sat through his trial...heard his doom...crossed, eventually, the penitentiary's mill, chained to a less spectacular felon.

Not once did he quiver or cry out...or even seem to weep. No tears or terror shook his stony unconcern. Not even when some cursed...and shook their fists...and spat.

Some said he was broken by the shock. And some said he was wronged out by the shame. And some said, "There's heroic self-control."

But the real reason for Richard Whitney's strange, inhuman calm lay hidden in the records of the judge's desk...and in these twisted times in which we live.

Elsie Robinson

MANY records—medical, legal, psychiatric—but through them all, the same phrases over and over again. "PROUD, EGOTISTICAL, OBSTINATE"—so one ran. And another—"HERE IS A MAN TO WHOM THE IDEA OF PERSONAL AND FINANCIAL FAILURE WAS APPARENTLY INCONCEIVABLE."...A MAN OF SUPERIOR INTELLIGENCE BUT UNIMAGINATIVE. SO THAT HE NEVER BELIEVED HE COULD RUN AFOUL OF THE LAW." "AN INTELLIGENCE SO HIGH THAT ONLY ONE PER CENT OF THE PEOPLE OF THE WORLD COULD SCORE AS WELL—BUT WITH NO IMAGINATION TO BALANCE IT OR SET A CURB UPON IT."

INTELLIGENCE WITHOUT IMAGINATION. There, hidden in a mass of scientific phraseology, lay the sinister secret of Richard Whitney's enormous power and enormous guilt...and the possible jinx of this whole miserable, heartless age.

Intelligence without imagination—a psychic horror more dangerous than any maniac, more ruthless than any fiend.

The power to THINK incredible feats...to rule, for years, over that jungle herd of golden dinosaurs whose lair is Wall Street...but no power or desire to follow his thoughts through...no power, even, to stand off and look at himself and see his approaching doom.

We're breeding people like that these days...The scientists blame it on speed tortured glands—but they're wrong. People don't get like that because they have too much or too little thyroid.

THEY GET THAT WAY WHEN LIFE BECOMES TOO EASY...WHEN THERE'S ALWAYS A MACHINE TO DO THINGS FOR YOU...WHEN LIFE BECOMES FULL OF ESCAPE MECHANISMS, MENTAL, MORAL AND PHYSICAL, AND YOU CAN DUCK FROM ANYTHING THAT BOTHERS YOU...INCLUDING YOUR LANDLORD AND GOD.

The Push Button Age...and the Smartie Age. Intelligence without imagination. We should worry about tomorrow...let's hang up a record today!

So we don't worry. We don't think things through. And presently we find that—we CAN'T. We're still smart but, somehow, the combination won't work. For, in spite of our shrewdness and in spite of our speed—

THE OLD CONSEQUENCES KEEP COMING ALONG, AND THE OLD RULES KEEP GRINDING RIGHT. AND, ALTHOUGH WE MAY HAVE FORGOTTEN HIM, GOD'S STILL RIGHT ON THE JOB!

Executive—and more power to Congress and the Supreme Court!

ISN'T it time for those of us who want to save our constitutional liberties from going the way of constitutional liberties in over-the-Rhine Europe to give some attention to the powers of the President?

J. Stewart Sadler, of Milwaukee, writes to "MARCH OF EVENTS" this vigorous letter:

"I think we need a national Constitutional Convention to curtail the powers of the Chief Executive. We have been on the edge of a dictatorship for several years. What sort of a Democracy is that in which the President tries to break the courts and Congress to his will?"

No more timely question was ever asked. The greatest issue that will confront the people of this country in the future is the Chief Executive and his powers. He is getting too big, for his body.

Congress and the Supreme Court should be the supreme arbiters of our fate.

The President should be reduced to a mere executive—one who executes the laws. When he attempts to assume extra-constitutional functions he should be threatened with impeachment.

Every country in the world that has had trouble has had it with its ruler.

We must reduce the President to A PAID SERVANT OF THE PEOPLE.

Less Hunkeyism before the Chief

"WE ARE SUCH STUFF AS DREAMS ARE MADE ON."—Shakespeare.

It was only a step from the dazzling sunlight of a spring afternoon on Fifth Avenue, with its wordily-minded throng and flashing autos, to a domain as strange and as fantastic as ever was imagined by Edgar Allan Poe.

I had wandered into an immense semi-darkened room in the Grand Central Art Galleries opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral.

There I saw the "Split" paintings of Mrs. Irving T. Bush, who "creates subconsciously" subjects that she names "Kubla Khan," "Tornado," "Leopard Man," "Famine," etc.

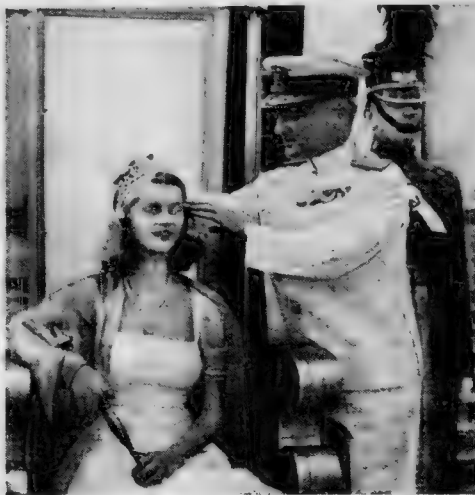

She calls it "Dreaming on Canvas." Her work is haunting, powerful, beautiful and original—and they are NOT for sale.

Mrs. Bush's method of expression recalls to me that Robert Louis Stevenson attributed many of his stories to "SLEEPLESS BROWNIES." Alfred de Musset, the French poet, said he "did not work—he listened; it is as if some one spoke in my ear."

We are all under these influences. You have often suddenly stood stock-still and said to yourself, "WHERE DID I EVER GET THAT THOUGHT FROM?"

Everything great is inspired. Reasoned writing and art are merely putting down waking dreams.

Hurley Favors Return of CWA

SPRINGFIELD, April 29—A return to the Civil Works Administration plan of providing unemployment relief was recommended by Governor Hurley here today at the State conference of welfare officials in Hotel Kimball.

"As you recall, the local city and town governments set up projects which the CWA board approved. If found satisfactory and the money was turned over to the local government," he said. "This system, in my opinion, worked perfectly."

Gov. Hurley said he hoped the Legislature would adopt recommendations of a special commission that studied a huge building program for mental institutions.

He defended the administration of hospitals which were under fire of charges which included illegal burial of bodies, violent deaths and discrepancies in accounts.

"When you consider that we have 25,000 patients it really is a miracle that the institutions are conducted as well as they are," he said.

G. O. P. Here Leads Fight For Congress

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Massachusetts Republicans have been chosen to take the lead this year in a countrywide drive to regain Republican seats in Congress at the fall elections.

This was revealed today with the resignation of George H. Norton of Somerville, legislative agent of the Republican state committee, in order that he may take up his new duties in Washington starting Monday.

MARTIN IN COMMAND

Norton, more than a quarter of a century in politics, has been appointed assistant to Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of North Attleboro, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Congressman Martin was placed on that committee because of his outstanding work as manager of the eastern division of the National Republican Committee, which carried the only two states that went for Alfred M. Landon in 1936.

One of the Massachusetts seats that will be sought especially by the Martin committee is that of Congressman Arthur D. Healy (D.) of Somerville. Another is that of Joseph E. Casey of Leominster, also a Democrat.

AIDE TO CONGRESSMEN

Norton opposed Healey in the 1932 election, but was a victim of the Democratic sweep that gave President Roosevelt his first term.

Before that he had served as secretary to four congressmen, including Charles L. Underhill of Somerville, who resigned after serving several terms.

The others with whom he served as secretary were Allen T. Treadway, Ernest W. Roberts and J. T. Fuller when Fuller was in Congress.

Edison Girls! Come Get Your 'Perfect' Husband

JOBLESS MAN WANTS WIFE—WITH JOB—Here's John E. Gray, 32, of Oliver street, Malden, "tall, dark and handsome," and willing to marry. He seeks girl who's got a job, and will keep it. That goes for those Edison Company girls who will lose their positions if they wed after tomorrow. He prefers rich widow, but—in photo John is proving he's handy around kitchen.

You girls who don't work for the Boston Edison Company—don't read this story.

But if you do work for the Boston Edison Company, well, this story should be very interesting and perhaps have an effect on your future life.

Want a husband before that May 1 deadline, beyond which you can't marry and keep your job?

There's a candidate in the field who says he's tall and dark and "just about perfect" for matrimony and, furthermore, he'll take any Boston Edison girl so inclined.

He's John Gray, 32, of Linden, whom you can view in the accompanying picture. There's only one stipulation on Mr. Gray's part—his wife must keep on working after marriage. To assure this, his offer only holds good until midnight of April 30. After that, well, marriage would mean unemployment for both Mr. Gray and his Boston Edison wife.

"Of course I'd prefer a wealthy widow with a farm to carry out Henry Ford's plan," said Gray. "But you can't have everything." He declared he has no bad habits, enjoys fishing, checkers, cards, occasionally the horses, and doesn't dance. He's had other girls, he'd have you know, but he's ready and willing to settle down and become a model husband.

"Dictator Bill" Revival Reported

V. F. W. Auxiliary Head Flays 'Isms' Peril Here

Charging that "isms" are undermining American democracy, Mrs. Laurie Schertle, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary, was here today to take part in the organization's annual May Day patriotic rally.

Mrs. Schertle, who lives in Oakland, Calif., will speak on the Common with Commander-in-Chief Scott P. Squires of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who arrives tonight.

She added: "Our organization opposes propaganda rights for 'isms' against Americanism."

Mrs. Elinor Delaney of Beverly was the Massachusetts delegate to greet Mrs. Schertle.

Past State President Bessie G. Miener, general chairman, said the police department had assigned a detail to prevent any demonstration by "subversive groups" at the rally Sunday.

Nat Clark Steals Style Show Honors

By BETTY ALDEN

NAT CLARK is going to be just as much in demand for fashion shows as his attractive sister-in-law, Mrs. Tim Clark . . . not because he would act as a mannequin to model the "lawst word" in feminine creations from Paris . . . but because he proved to be a most engaging master of ceremonies at yesterday afternoon's fashion show and tea at the Ritz . . . brought a welcome masculine touch to such a completely feminine affair . . . and last, but not least, displayed a hidden talent for entertaining by playing his own piano accompaniment and crooning "The King Isn't King Any More," much to the delight of the assembled ladies, particularly the unnamed sporting individual who was responsible for this impromptu addition to the program . . . This lady offered to buy $8 worth of guesses in the guessing contest, which benefited the Boston Dispensary and Floating Hospital, if Nat would sing . . . He did . . . The fashion show also established a reputation for Mrs. Charles Kinkade which she will be called upon to live up to during the summer . . . Everyone tried to guess the number of spots on a coin dotted gown modelled by Mrs. Robert Emmons, Jr. . . . "somewhere between 100 and 10,000 dots," as Nat Clark put it . . . With this wide range of figures to select from, Mrs. Kinkade picked it right on the nose, or more correctly, on the spot . . . exactly 6127 polka dots . . . Unfortunately, she will not have the pleasure of wearing the dress, which was awarded as a prize, for she had registered the winning guess under the name of her friend, Mrs. Gideon K. de Forest . . .

Mrs. Charles F. Adams greeted her daughter-in-law, Mopsy Adams, who made a slim little model, and Mrs. Renouf Russell sipped tea with her daughters, Susan and Elise, now Mrs. Roger Cutler, Jr. . . . the latter combined black and white in a cool and modish outfit . . . Mrs. James R. Hammond and Mrs. Samuel Gwin, both with individual pheasant feathers trimming their brimmed hats, were with Mrs. Robert Stevenson and Mrs. Arthur Bell . . .

George, whose parents live on Beacon street, has chosen a 100 per cent Bostonian group of ushers, including Nelson W. Aldrich, Edward Dane, Harrison Proctor, Daniel Jones and Robert Gowing . . . as well as his brother, Henry Brewster, and their brother-in-law, Lawrence H. H. Johnson . . . The maids of honor will carry arm bouquets of blue larkspur, while the bridesmaids' bouquets are of yellow daisies and maiden hair fern . . .

Polly has chosen the traditional bridal satin with orange blossoms on her veil, and lilies of the valley in her bouquet . . . She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Powers of Beacon street . . . and she and Bill will reside in a cottage on the Powers' country estate in Medfield . . .

Mr. Kemble is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Kemble of Cambridge . . .

Spade Print Wins—Hands Down

By ANNICE BRINK

YOU'LL trump your dearest rival's plans for chic and put her summer budget to redoubt rout when you arrive for your bridge afternoon in this fine linen-weave print. In the first place, probably no one will believe it cost around four dollars until they inspect the department from which it came. And then they'll believe that the time of the modern miracle-workers has arrived. Which is the simple truth. For this is another of the group of spun rayons that tub, resist wrinkles like iron, and have a peculiar coath that only the synthetics manage to achieve. A background of wet-sand is printed with navy blue spades, and the navy belt ties with a bow of the fabric. For a perfect combination of the smart neutrals, the hat brim is hayseed straw, and the crown navy. For shopping information on this print frock (around four dollars) phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000 week-days, or write her at the Boston American.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL 2-Cent Pine Facial

By ARLINE GOULD

HAVE YOU heard of an amazing pine-facial treatment from which you lift your face refreshed with new glow, and tired lines have flown away on the wings of pine-scented steam?

There is an extremely concentrated pine bath oil, so rich and invigorating that some smart girl used it cleverly in a system treatment and found that there was a distinct improvement in her complexion texture in a matter of minutes!

Heavy and thick, an intense emollient green, the oil has captured the healing, beneficial essence of whole pine forests. You may be a pine-bath addict as of old—but we guarantee you'll not often find one with the properties of this discovery. It leaves no ring on the tub. It doesn't stain towels. And it's so concentrated that you use but a few drops.

This is how you go about your pine facial—cost about two cents, divided a million dollars' worth of shining good looks and a complexion clarity you thought you'd bid farewell to some time back in your calendar!

Cover your face and neck completely with your favorite tissue cream. Into steaming hot water in the lavatory pour two tablespoonfuls of this special pine oil, then drape yourself all over your head like the sheik of a long-gone day, use another towel to cover your head and the lavatory. Then let the steam circulate over your face for a few minutes. Wipe off the tissue cream and you'll see an actual difference in skin texture! This is such a beneficial treatment you can fall back on it for moral and beauty support any time you need it!

For shopping information on the pine oil which has all these miraculous new properties, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

He Prefers Her Roommate

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The letter I print today reveals a most trying situation and one that requires extreme tact.

However, here is the girl's letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: For the past six years I have been going with a man, and everyone took it for granted we were to be married. I could not understand his change of manner toward me until I came home earlier than usual from my work one day and found him and the girl with whom I share my apartment in animated conversation.

Since then he has come to our apartment every night, and I don't know whether he comes to see me or my friend.

If these two are falling in love, shall I step aside, or shall I put an end to these meetings?

How to Carve Turkey 'Royally'

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEN—11:30 A. M.

Spring entertaining is underway again and we've received a request about buffet suppers.

One lady wants to know how to carve turkey Imperial Style. Roast turkey carved in this manner does make just the best possible entree for a Spring buffet supper.

Roast the turkey the day before it is needed. The turkey can be carved, and reheated before serving. Or it may be served cold.

Turkey should be roasted at a constant low temperature for best results. If you want a roast that will be so filled with juices that they start to run out as soon as the skin is cut, prepare in this way.

Allow about thirty minutes per pound and do not sear before roasting. Contrary to the belief of our grandmother the flavors are not kept in by searing. Cooking at a low temperature throughout the process also ensures a delightfully browned skin which is not dried and broken by the extreme heat.

HOW TO CARVE A TURKEY—IMPERIAL STYLE

The Imperial method of carving is a method of carving the bird in the kitchen and rebuilding it into its out-of-the-oven appearance for serving at the table, hot or cold. It is done this way.

Cut off both legs in the usual manner. Separate the drumstick and the thigh. Remove thigh meat from bone. Put slices of thigh meat across the grain about eight pieces from each thigh.

Disjoint wings. This will take a cut about the inch and a half on the breast. Carvers do not seem to cut high enough into the breast to strike the wing joint.

Separate the entire breast section from the back by cutting from the wing joint and through the ribs and down to the vent. Cut away pieces of meat from the back (two oysters, and white meat in upper back).

Slip the knife along each side of the keel bone, then loosen the two halves of breast in one piece from each side. Slice at about a 45 degree angle across the grain and keep all the slices parallel and keep intact.

Arrange the dressing on the platter through the center. Lay the breast back on a top of this as a foundation for the breast meat. Replace the sliced breast meat as it originally was on each side of the bone, the sliced thigh and back meat along the side of the breast meat, and the drumsticks in their usual shape along the end of the breast.

Garnish with parsley and if available slip frills over ends of drumsticks. The meat may be arranged on several layers of brown paper placed on a cooking sheet for handling in the oven. The hot meat then is transferred to a warm serving platter by pulling the paper from underneath.

If sizzling, or silver platter is available, the sliced meat can be arranged on the platter without any paper. Cover the bird while in the oven with a clean white cloth wrung out of hot water. It helps to keep the meat from drying out and hastens the reheating.

What Has Happened:

CONSTANCE DAREY is just 20 and terribly in love with TERRY CANNON. He and Constance plan to marry the following October. For the summer, Terry will act as swimming instructor at a boys' camp and Constance will be secretary to GORDON KEITH, newspaper correspondent and ladies' man.

ROSALIND, Constance's 18-year-old sister, envies the life of luxury enjoyed by the folk who live in that exclusive part of the town called "The Hills." She has been seeing the wealthy playboy, VAN HOWARD.

While working for Gordon, Constance meets AVIS BAILEY, attractive young debutante. The latter is obviously interested in the handsome Gordon.

Time passes and one day, as Gordon helps Constance with her coat, his hands rest on her shoulders. A rush of emotion sweeps over her. Why had his touch stirred her? Brooding over Van, Rosalind attempts suicide. It develops she and Van are married.

Thanks to Gordon, Van's mother is reconciled and Rosalind goes to live "on the hill." Soon she forgets her family. Constance especially. When Gordon shows too much fondness, Constance resists his suit. But she still loves him.

Rosalind becomes a favorite among the young social set. Constance visits Terry at the boys' camp and desperately tries to conceal her affection for Gordon, whom Avis Bailey has rejected as a "fortune hunter."

Now Continue:

CHAPTER 17

In the afternoon the boys went into the water again. And again Terry stood on the high dive platform as he directed his miniature army. Constance swam out and back and sat on the sand. Her eyes were troubled, almost desperate, as they glanced at the lean brown figure with a whistle between his teeth.

Play fair. That was Terry's motto. His code. Was she being fair? But did she dare to be honest? "I'd rather be hurt a thousand times than have Terry hurt once. I'll get over it. I'll just have to fight against it a little longer."

After dinner and an hour of play the children went willingly to bed. Twilight dissolved into night and the pines were like a curtain around the camp.

Constance and Terry had left Mike and Nina in their maple furnished living room and had walked to a river.

"I've been wanting to kiss you all day," Terry said as his arms encircled her.

"I'm not working for Gordon Keith any more, Terry."

"No?" He would not ask her why she had left. It was enough to know that she no longer spent her days in the study of the Spanish house with him.

Had there been a scene? Had Keith overstepped the bounds? Probably so. And Constance had withdrawn as he had known she would.

It was like Terry not to ask questions. "Thank you," she thought, "for not making me lie to you."

They stayed there for hours, talking, and then walked back through the silent camp to the Fishery cabin. On the porch Terry kissed her and said, "Good night, my sweet girl," and left her.

IF SHE COULD:

Lying on the living room sofa the tears rolled unchecked down her warm cheeks. Never, she felt, had any girl been faced with the problem of loving two men. Was it the decent thing to clear her troubled conscience and tell Terry? She reached a conclusion about Gordon after a sleepless night and she would not alter it. Forget him, put him out of her heart—if only she could. If only she could!

On Sunday morning when the camp seethed with activity, she felt beaten and broken. She hoped that no one noticed how tired she looked.

As she brushed her hair before Donna's maple dressing table, Donna said, "Please come up often. It's so good to have a girl to talk to. But Terry has talked and raved about you so much I feel that I've always known you. I don't think I've ever seen a man so much in love. And you and he make such a grand couple."

"Mike's offer is still open if he wants to join us. We won't make any money this year but next year we should. And we like to think that in a few years this will be one of the finest camps for boys in the country."

"I wish Terry would," Constance said. "It's the kind of work he loves. He's happy here."

Donna laughed. "But he said he had to marry you first, that he'd waited long enough! I don't blame him!"

She left directly after noonday dinner and Terry walked to the roadster with her.

"Drive carefully and don't pick up any hitch-hikers," And thrust his brown head in the car and kissed her warmly.

"Keep me close to you, darling, and always remember I'm there. I've been in this place from the first but I'm going to like it a lot better because you've been here. Have I told you this time that I love you?"

"I LOVE YOU."

"Yes. Last night. And I love you, Terry. Nothing will ever change that." And it was true. "Are you coming home soon?"

"Soon as I can. Drop in and talk to Mother and Dad when you can. And remember me to Rosalind or rather—sorry—to Mrs. Howard. I hope the kid keeps her feet on the ground."

"Good-bye, Terry."

He laughed. "Don't make it sound so final."

A moment later she saw him through the window. Very tall and brown and dressed in white trousers and a yellow shirt. His gay voice saying, "Don't make it sound so final," twisted her heart.

He had no doubts about her. She left him happy. Terry still had his tomorrow. But what reality was she going back to as she drove toward Northwood this warm afternoon? To what tomorrow and with whom?

Wearing blue satin lounging pyjamas, Rosalind lay on the blue chaise longue in her pretty sitting room. On the table beside her was an open box of candy and on her lap three current fashion magazines.

But she was not reading. A mirror framed in silver in her hand, she was regarding her face approvingly.

When Van came in, she put the mirror down quickly. He went to her, held her in his arms, and kissed her.

"This is why I hurry home," he said, "to kiss you and to look at you. No more sleeping at the club for a cocktail."

Sitting beside her, holding her small childish hand, he helped himself to candy.

"Gosh, I'm tired. I've got a kink in my neck. I can't say I liked my job much at first, but I'm changing my mind now and I like it fine. After a while you get the feeling there's a lot to learn and ROSALIND AND VAN quarrel. He moved from the room. He said: "The Red Slipper, eh? I ought to know the place pretty well. That's where I picked YOU up."

you want to learn the whole business."

"I'll make the people who said I was a disgrace to my family eat the words."

He kissed Rosalind's fingers. "Me for a shower, some dinner, and bed. I'm all in."

"Oh Van, I want to show you my new dress."

"What? Another?"

She went to the closet and brought forth an exquisite creation of white lace.

"Nice," he said, grinning. "I'll bet you look swell in it."

Her eyes were moody. "I thought it to wear to the club tonight, Van." And insisted sulkily, "I want to go to the Club tonight so that I can wear it."

"Not tonight," He drew her to him.

"Come now. Let's not argue about it. I'll take you to the Wednesday night dance. They're always better. Not such a mob."

"I HEARD YOU!"

But I want to go tonight!" She drew away. "You're always too tired to do anything I want to do! The bank! The bank! That's all you talk about. Do you think I want to stay home on Saturday night with everybody dancing at the club?"

"I've dreamed all my life of belonging and going to dances there and now when I do belong you won't take me. You're always tired. I'm sick of hearing you say it. But you—her bright dark eyes narrowed—"You weren't too tired to talk to a girl who called you the other night. You talked downstairs but I happened to pick up the phone up here and heard you."

He tried to be patient. "That was Felice. She's been away on a cruise and just got back. She didn't know I was married. Snap out of it, Rosalind. The white lace dress on a chair, she cried, "And she called you again last night."

"What do you do, listen to all the telephone conversations in the house? Is that all you have to do?"

"I heard you! She said she wanted to go slumming at the Red Slipper and asked you to take her. She doesn't care if you're married. For all I know you've been out with her. How do I know how you spend your days?"

"He came to the end of his patience. Going to the door, he held it open and cried, "The Red Slipper, eh? I ought to know the place pretty well. That's where I picked you up!"

"All this week you've been nagging me about one thing and then another. I'm sick of that! I am tired. I work."

"That's how I spend my days. I don't give a rap about Felice. But I've known her a long time and I can't help it if she calls me, can I? I have to be polite and kind her along."

"Where are you going?"

A JEALOUS WIFE

"Wouldn't you like to know? Maybe I'm going to the Red Slipper. Maybe I'm going to take Felice slumming. The girls at the Red Slipper were always glad to see me!"

The door slammed after him. The next moment she heard his car drive off. But she would not call him back. She would not run after him and tell him she was sorry.

Her pride and her anger would not let her. He'd cool off and come back so that she could wear her new dress.

Since Stephen was out of town and Nina was dining with her sister, Rosalind, changing from the pyjamas into a green chiffon dinner dress, dined alone in the large dining room.

Eating little, quarreling with the servant about the food, the meal was finished and she returned to the drawing room to wait. Her anger growing, she paced the rug, pausing several times when she thought she heard a car driving in.

Van was so unreasonable. The bank, his job... She would not be a neglected wife. She wouldn't! Why buy pretty clothes if you couldn't wear them?

Why belong to a club when you could not go dancing there on Saturday night? She had counted so on tonight and had thought about it all day.

She had imagined how she would receive, and the envious glances of the other girls.

When the clock in the hall chimed ten times, she flung it a look of defiance. Perhaps Van wasn't coming back! Perhaps he had gone to the Red Slipper with Felice!

And the girls she had known in high school would see him and say he was tired of her and "stepping out" already! He would dance with those girls... Van, dancing with those girls...

SHE WAS DESPERATE. Unreasoning jealousy mixed with her anger and disappointment now. And she was frightened. But she would never let anyone know she was frightened, that the thought of his being with another girl made a sharp pain go through her because she loved him so much.

Suppose there was a pretty girl at the Red Slipper he had never seen... And suppose he said to the girl the same things he had said to Rosalind the first night he had seen and danced with her... "Where've you been all my life, beautiful?"

If he should ever stop loving her and discard her and send her back to Vine Street, she would die.

Not stopping to get a coat, she hurried out to the garage to her own car, a recent gift from Nina, and drove fast to the road house.

Danger Signs Of Rare Ailment

B. ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Many persons hold the wrong belief that poor circulation is a minor and trivial disorder. They fail to realize that it may be the first sign of some organic disorder. For example, it may be due to Raynaud's disease.

In this affliction there is a peculiar spasm of the blood vessels. As a rule it is confined to the vessels of the extremities. Of course, it may be found elsewhere, but usually in the fingers or toes.

It is more common among females than males. Women who are overworked, undernourished, anemic or who suffer from some constitutional disturbance, are most likely to develop this disorder.

Those who suffer from this affliction have cold feet and hands. If the affected part is carefully examined during a spasm, a peculiar blanching of the skin is noted. This is caused by a shutting off of the circulation. The victim complains of a sensation which he describes as a "going to sleep" of the parts involved.

In the more advanced form of the disease the skin may actually appear dead white. This pallor persists for a half hour or longer.

Of course I do not mean to imply that all cases of poor circulation are necessarily signs of Raynaud's disease. As a matter of fact, the ailment is rare.

Analysis of Two Natures: Terry vs. Stengel

TODAY COL. WILLIAM TERRY OF THE Giants was cheerful. Col. Terry smiled. Col. Terry tossed the ball with a jocund dignity. Never a snarl curled his lip.

AUSTEN LAKE

No gleam of animosity lit his eye. No bulge of irritation swelled the muscles of his jaw. Yet Col. Terry, scourge of newspapermen, was chatting with a sport writer of his own volition and from his own precious leisure.

The middle-aged autocrat of the dugout has a salting of gray hair in his scalp. Now in his gathering age he sucks a black briar pipe which he holds 'twixt thumb and forefinger instead of gnawing unlit cigars like a child chewing its nails. He wears the sable clothes of a prosperous mortician and a salad-green hat. He munches his words like polysyllabic breakfast food.

Does Mr. Terry read what the press writes about him? (Pause) Yes! Does it annoy him? (Pause) No! After his Declaration of Rights in a National Magazine last winter, do the newsmen still pester him? Seldom except at the ball parks! Did the Dean deal cause him much vexation? Pooh! (Tingler-twiddles like the action of escaping birds) Hadn't given it much thought! What about our 1938 Bees? Huh! (Deprecatory puckering of the mouth) Same old Bees!

It makes a queer catchment. Questions and answers both were trivial. But the main thing is that Terry stood steadily under examination and didn't pick a quarrel about his jewels, didn't thrust out his double lip, didn't make any headcase scowls with his brows. And when conversation languished he even volunteered observations of his own. The Princeton would as usual lick themselves. It would resolve its stretch race between Garte and Cuba. A non-playing manager should be at the front point of danger, so he is coaching at third base. The heart of his hitting crier was belting the ball, so he could afford to take base running gambles. So forth and so on.

IT WAS A NOVEL VIEW OF TERRY, the many colored chameleon. For, of the many times I have held him in conversation, here or elsewhere, Terry's reaction has varied from black-funk to cheerful-brown, to tolerant-gray, to tractable-white to an amiable rose. I suppose it was a matter of immediate mood, and perhaps my varying angles of approach. For certainly Terry is more allergic to some newsmen than to others, just as a hayfever addict may be susceptible to golden rod and not to sun-flowers.

Newsmen love to bait the old grampus just to see him faze like a trout. Terry, they say, has a bad temper. But Terry is an emotionalist, not a pouter. Terry in place of humor is a dullard. So the journalists poke him up with verbal sticks like small, malicious boys prod a caped bear and then jot down his growls for the sport editors. Thus Terry has grown more moose, solitary and unsocial through the years. When he answers his phone instead of a general "Hello" he says a contemptuous "What's it?" as though inviting a fatal chip to message from his vocal shoulder. He is invariably too busy. "What'd you have in your mind?" Sometimes, in premature impatience, he bangs down the receiver.

Terry started it. The newsmen, gleefully, are continuing it. Always a hypersensitive set and swift to pet their prejudices, the writers have had a pound of insult for an ounce of slur and turned each individual outrage into an epidemic of reproach.

Terry, a Negative Type

FEW NEWSPAPERS HAVE BOTHERED TO STUDY Terry as a psychopathic subject, who possibly, under his surly exterior, yearns to be accepted into the lobby fellowships, the Pullman brotherhood and the press fraternities—but cannot, because he was coined with a somber soul and has to hide himself to conceal a sense of thwart. Who knows, but that his electro-chemistry may be of the negative sort and thus produces a painful static upon contacting positive surroundings?

So, they say that Terry is money-hungry. If so, and I don't say it's so, it may trace to a barren boyhood in unfertile surroundings. For a money mania often springs from early hardship. Greed is an escape complex. If they say that Terry is secretive, lacks confidants and claims to craves that could spring from the hereditary distrust he found in the backwoods of Tennessee where folk harvest literature with mousetrap traps and learn to watch fishing neighbors. The impressions of boyhood live in the grown man, and Terry is said to have sprung from beginnings which knew the seven hangers of mankind.

DOUR WILL IS NO MORE RESPONSIBLE for his inherent nature than gay and garrulous Casey Stengel of the Boston Bees is for his. Indeed, no two types could stand at such opposite poles of personality, of which the by-product is popularity. For Casey soaks up fellowship like a thirsty earth absorbs the rain—and with as little conscious action.

Casey instinctively seeks the warmth of friendship as a sunflower turns toward the eye in the sky. The result is on record. Casey has the affection and support of the newspaper men, who generously give in kind what they receive. When he lost his Brooklyn job the reporters gave him a dollar and a silver cup. In Boston, when the generally respected Bill McKeehan left town, the local writers puffed up a poet, but shed it quickly for a grin after Casey's first hour as a Bee. He gives of himself, is a hopeless sucker with his spare time, remains accessible at all times, listens willingly to the most pettifogged ear-aches and solid citizens of our trade without discrimination. And he probably knows his baseball book as intimately as Col. Will.

So what? So, this is an analysis of two human extremes in the National League, the hot and cold of human nature, two who owe their opposite individualities to the twin forces of human destiny, heredity and environment. How much, do you suppose, is either responsible for his nature?

Ingalls to Pitch Against Tigers

Harvard's varsity baseball team will open its series of home games in Eastern Intercollegiate League competition in tomorrow.

In their wild clash last Saturday at Princeton, which Harvard finally won 14-13, neither team showed much in the way of pitching or fielding finesse.

The best news to arrive from the confines of Sudaria Field in the past two weeks is that Coach Fred Mitchell is hoping to start his big right-hand ace, Ed Ingalls, on the mound.

Ingalls has been bothered with a trick knee and a sore right arm since the spring. Princeton battery will be made up of Bob Riddle, former Peddie School athlete and Ed Givens, All-League catcher for 1934. Givens is an Abington High School product.

Medwick Blasts Dean

Starts Jams, Ducks, Says "Ducky"

PITTSBURGH, April 28 (AP)—Quick-fisted Joe Medwick, reputedly the one man on the Cardinals whom Dizzy Dean feared.

Dean charged today that while team mate started fights that the rest of the gas house gang had to finish.

Medwick's blast was provoked by Dizzy's recent published version of the row with two sports writers, Irving Kucpnet and Jack Miley, at Tampa, Fla., a year ago last spring. Dizzy said he wasn't in the right at all.

"He's right in one respect," Medwick wrote to Chicago newspapers. "He wasn't in the fight after fists started to fly."

"He usually does a crawfish act about that time. He starts a fight and then somebody else has to protect him."

The Cardinal outfielder declared that the same thing happened in a row with the New York Giants in St. Louis last May 19.

Ross, Hanley at Sports Final Dinner

Public Welcome At Fete

Fall and winter sports as well as those currently featured will be given due recognition and honor at the Boston American Night Sports Final dinner at the Club Mayfair on May 8.

All Ross, popular Bruins pilot, and I. B. "Pat" Hanley, Boston University's well liked football mentor, will be inside the doors when the roll call of sports celebrities is taken.

ROSS A CITIZEN

Ross had made hockey history in Boston. He came here 14 years ago to build the sport and started from scratch.

It took him two seasons to get rolling but during the last 12 years his clubs have always been right up there with the best.

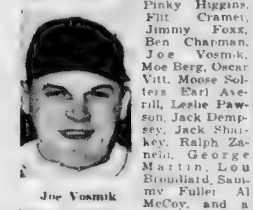

In fact Boston has completely won over the genial Bruin pilot, and he now makes his home here and has taken out citizenship papers.

Pat Hanley has directed four Boston University football teams since 1934, and his record speaks for itself.

He has been instrumental in lifting the Terriers from football obscurity to a place in the grid spotlight.

FELLER TOO

Hanley and Ross will mingle with such well known sports figures as Bob Feller, Joe Cronin, Pinky Higgins, Phil Cramer, Jimmy Fox, Ben Chapman, Joe Voornik, Moe Berg, Oscar Vitt, Moose Solters, Earl Averill, Lesie Fawson, Jack Dempsey, Jack Sharkey, Ralph Zand, George Martin, Lou Brumfield, Sam Fuller, Al McCoy, and a host of others.

Joe Voornik

The state's most important political figures and a grand show featured by Ina Ray Hutton rounds out the Boston Evening American birthday party.

The Mayfair will be wide open on May 8, and everybody who wishes can attend. The doors will be held open just as long as there is room.

FELDMAN TAKES TRIP

NEW YORK, April 29 (INS)—Abe Feldman, who acted as Tommy Farr's sparring partner at Aubury Park prior to the Weichman's bout with Joe Louis, will sail on the same boat which will take Farr and Charley Barnett, his ghost writer, to England on Wednesday.

Today's final Ag—Burling's defense, Brooklyn manager, called into conference by National League President Ford Frick after banishment from two ball games.

Five Years Ago—Jack Quinn, added pitcher to big league, unconditionally released by Brooklyn after serving in major league 1933.

BEES MAY PULL TRADE

Casey Stengel and his Bees depart on their first Western invasion tonight. A couple of those Western clubs aren't registering, and it may be that the Bees will be able to consummate a deal before they return home.

Jesse Guilford

Jack Quinn

Jesse Guilford has been ailing for a week. There's a suspicion that he has appendix trouble. But, he's the same old reliable Jesse. He was at the Woodland Golf Club new member get-together. Buddy Hassell may be out of the Dodger line up for some time. A week or more back, Buddy came up with what was supposed to be a pulled groin. He aggravated his injury when he was sent in as a pinch hitter, and now some tissues in his groin are torn.

Tres Erasmus B. Badger, of the Massachusetts Golf Association, sails for England on Monday. He will stay over for the Walker Cup matches. In Jack Quinn and Bob Gibson, Boston University have two outstanding college ball players. Incidentally, Quinn is playing under an alias when he's referred to as Jack. He is none other than Johnny ("Yama") Quinn, the former well-known junior golfer from the "Settlement." He was the runner up to Bill Donnelly in the 1931 state junior championship at Sandy Hutter, and the previous season he was beaten in the finals of the William Randolph Hearst New England junior championship at Wellston—BILL GRIMES.

DiMag's Hands Blistered

NEW YORK, April 29 (INS)—His hands blistered from the batting he has been doing at the Yankee Stadium while the team has been on the road, Joe DiMaggio is still indefinite when he will be able to get into the Yankee lineup and put himself on the payroll of Col. Ruppert.

"I'm coming along all right," said Joe.

"I haven't started to cut loose with my throwing yet. Probably will in a couple of days.

"If he knows there soon, I'm anxious to get in there."

The club isn't hurrying its star outfielder.

There is no desire to take any chances with Joe's "trick" knee. A quick start might ruin that. So a few days won't make any difference.

Rockfel Wins Stake Race

NEWMARKET, Eng., April 29 (AP)—Sir Hugo Cluniff-Owens's Rockfel won the 1000 Guinea Stakes today, defeating D. Crossman's Laughing Water by a length and a half and Sir Alfred Butt's Solar Flower by four and a half. Rockfel was held at 8 to 1 in the betting.

Two American-owned starters, William Woodward's Gaimy and James Corrigan's Clever Sarah finished among the also-rans. So too did Dorothy Paget's Radiant, only one in the field which also is entered in the Derby.

Boxing Results

PORTLAND, Me.—Paul Jenner, 136, Lewiston, defeated John J. Tilton, 134, New Haven, Conn., 10 rounds, newspaper decision. Battling Downey, 161, Lowell, Mass., hammered out newspaper verdict over "Stomach" Jackson, 160, Lynn, six rounds.

Fall River—Jack Murray, 160, defeated Jackie Flowers, 161, 10 rounds.

Scanlon Meets Clapp in Dash

By WALTER KILEY

Varsity athletes of Boston College, Bowdoin, Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Holy Cross, New Hampshire, Northeastern, Rhode Island State and Yale compete in tomorrow's New England Relay Carnival at Harvard Stadium.

Boston University, Massachusetts State and Tufts join up for the freshman events.

Particular interest centers around the open 100-yard dash, mile and two mile runs, varsity hammer throw and mile relay.

The dash brings together Larry Scanlon of Holy Cross and Ken Clapp of Brown.

The Purple sprinter has been New England intercollegiate 100-yard dash champion for the past two seasons and won the century at the relay carnival a year ago.

Clapp is the Bruins' fast sophomore who forced Scanlon to 8.9 seconds last Saturday at Providence. The Brown corner turned in a 9.7 second clocking as a freshman and looks better with every appearance.

Stan Holt of Rhode Island State, Stewart Whitman of Dartmouth, Hugh McMenimen of Yale and Captain Alec Northrop of Harvard clash in the mile fixture and should provide a well bunched field.

The hammer throw is headlined by Irving Solwarsky of R. I. State, Intercollegiate champion, and Jack McLaughry of Brown, another promising sophomore.

The mile relay feature pits Harvard, Rhode Island State, Holy Cross and Boston College together; well matched teams, with Dick Gill of Boston College and Jim Lightbody of Harvard scheduled to race each other for the first time in the anchor leg of the event.

American-Italians Bask in Sport Sun

DiMaggio, Lazzeri 'Tops' in Baseball

NEW YORK April 29 (INS)—Recent incidents plus public interest stimulated by Joe DiMaggio's contractual dispute has centered attention on American-born athletes of Italian parentage.

Scanning the major league clubs one notes that the Italian athletes have attained prominence and financial security for themselves.

And outstriking of all Italians in baseball is San Francisco's gift to the game, Joe DiMaggio. On the diamond, DiMaggio is the embodiment of Babe Ruth's slugging. This Spaulter's smart fielding and Bob Meusel's powerful right arm.

Then there is Tony Lazzeri of the Chicago Cubs to lead the National League his new job as player and coach with the Cubs will bear watching.

Others getting mention are Lavagello, Mancuso, Cronetti, Male, Cavaretta, Bongiovanni, Lombardi, Camilli and Cascarella.

SARZEN THE GOLFER

With the turf world all revving about the coming special match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit, we find Eddie Arcaro, Marnett, Pasuma, Silvio Coucou and Frank Addington to mention a few turf jockeys, that also belong to the clan.

In football Ed Franco, Al Caruso, Frank Carideo, Tony Siano and Joe Savardi of Notre Dame fame are high. Today, Siano and Savardi take out a living in the groan and grunt business.

And in the auto racing class we have Ralph de Palma, Kelly Reilly and Peter De Paola.

The recent blast against the golf association by Gene Sarazen reminded us that one of the game's greatest golfers was the same ilk as Tony Manero, Vir Ghersi and the Tunes and Stafati brothers, not forgetting Johnny Revolta, leading runner of the 1933 winter circuit.

As for the football circle, the Italian have more than a fair share of the spotlight, and the same applies to all other forms of sports.

Five for Wilson

Five winners out of seven.

That was the way Dave Wilson, the Boston Evening American's handicapper, picked the Thursday's card at Havre De Grace.

Wilson's selections for the Maryland session have been very out in front, and his feat of yesterday was just another proof of his wizardry.

Wilson's winners at Havre included Jay Wind, $7.80; Yamer, $3.00; Sketchbook, best bet, $3.10; High Velocity, $1.90; and Dan $3.10.

Wilson's selections and graded handicaps are a regular feature of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Schoolboy Trackmen In 2 Meets

Schoolboy trackmen have their biggest day in years tomorrow with two important meets being held in different sections of the state.

Harvard, in conjunction with its annual New England collegiate track festival, is sponsoring an interscholastic relay carnival at the stadium in Cambridge.

Worcester Polytech's department of physical education is holding its 18th annual state schoolboy meet up at the school's spacious outdoor saucer in Worcester.

Both affairs should draw close to 500 prep, private and public school competitors.

Don Enoch's well-balanced Newton center contingent is an odds-on favorite to take the laurels at Worcester tomorrow. Lowell, winner of the championship in 1932, doesn't seem to have the power to repeat.

Bill Ohrenberger's Boston English pikemen will be the gentlemen to watch in the relay carnival at the Stadium. The Blue and Blue runners exhibited enough power in the recently concluded indoor season to make trouble for any high school track team.

Boston English boys entered in the Cambridge affair include John Ballentine, Bill Clancy, John Caruso, Joe Conannon, John Gills, Tom Keady, Bob Laird, Rupert Leonard, George Melough, Emil Sholten, Chester Bush, Warren Enman, Dick Francis, John McDonald, Frank Nault and Warren Rhone.

King Returns

Wilson Here For Suffolk Meeting

DAVE WILSON

The king is home.

Only four words, but FOUR welcome words for New England followers of racing thoroughbreds.

The king in question is none other than Dave Wilson, the famed Boston Evening American handicapper, home for another New England racing season, which opens tomorrow afternoon at Suffolk Downs.

Wilson, since the close of the New England season, has been right on the scene of action in Maryland, West Virginia, Miami and Maryland again, before arriving home for another stellar season.

Wilson is the only New England handicapper who follows the thoroughbreds 365 days of the year. He is on the scene of action every day, no matter where the campaign is.

His selections and graded handicaps are the talk of the turf world.

His record at the Spring Bowls, Mass. meeting was 34 winners out of 81 races while his efforts to date at the current Havre De Grace session have topped all other handicappers.

Wilson will be right on the scene at Suffolk Downs clocking those racing steeds.

His selections for the East Boston track alone, with graded handicaps and comment will be a regular feature of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

His first Suffolk selections for 1933 appear in today's late editions.

Kurtsinger Sure Of 'Admiral' Mount

NEW YORK, April 29 (INS)—Charlie (Flying Dutchman) Kurtsinger today was definitely established as the jockey who will ride War Admiral against Seabiscuit in the $100,000 match race at Belmont Park on May 30. The ban was lifted on the Dutchman.

Kurtsinger will not ride Menow in the Kentucky Derby on May 7. He will ride Handicuff in the Pimlico Oaks the same day, meanwhile riding Pastured in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica tomorrow.

Freshman Race Regatta Feature

While the big varsity shells of Harvard, M. I. T. and Rutgers are battling for the Allen Winter Rowe Trophy tomorrow on the Charles, there is every reason to believe that the duel between the Harvard and Tech freshman eights may steal the show from their more highly touted brethren.

Despite promises of a good season, it is generally felt that both Tech and Rutgers will be outclassed by Coach Tom Bolles' powerful Crimson boat stroked by Captain Jim Chase, one of the best in the business.

However, the issue is not so clear-cut in the case of the freshman race, for Coach Jim Manning of Tech and Harvey Love of the Crimson Cubes both feel that it will be a mighty close race all the way.

Despite mediocre material at the start of last season, Harvard's Love whipped together a better than average freshman crew at Cambridge.

The reward for his hard work is seen in examining the seatings for the Crimson varsity eight which show that three of his boys—Rob Stevens at 7, Walt Kernan at 4 and John Richards at 2—have won starting berths for the Charles regatta.

Jim Manning is offering no apologies for the big Tech freshman shell that will battle Love's youngsters.

Rutgers Oarsmen Work Out on Charles

Rutgers varsity and junior varsity crews, which race against Harvard and M. I. T. tomorrow afternoon in the Rowe Memorial Cup regatta on the Charles, were to arrive in Boston today, and have a trial spin over the short Henley course at three o'clock.

The boys from the Raritan will be called upon to face two fine crews in Tom Bolles' Crimson oarsmen and the fast, lightweight shell-loaded assembled by Tech's new coach, Cedric Valentine.

TECH NINE PLAYS

The 1938 Tech nine is to play the Assumption college of Worcester team, on the Tech Coop field, tomorrow.

gone by and who have come through with the statement that Lightning Lew is likely to follow suit.

A busy fighter who hits a good punch with both hands, Raymond is determined to make a brilliant Boston bow, hoping to get some action in this vicinity this season, preferring to step in with George Martin or Ralph Zannelli.

Raymond, however, will be given a very busy reception by Kaplan, 20-year-old Roxbury sensation, who hasn't been beaten since turning professional.

Kaplan, just back from a semi-vacation to Florida, is full of fight and will go into the ring Monday night gunning for a knockout victory.

Jolting Joe Glasgow, Quincy, moves in with Dante Yannetti, Chelsea, in an interesting 8-round semi-final.

Sixes will be Young Byron, Roxbury, vs. flashy Paris Apice, Providence; and Frankie Campbell, North End, vs. Irish Johnny Smith, Quincy.

The opening four will be Fred Cabral, Cambridge, making his first local start as a pro, vs. Eddie Bangs, Boston.

Robert-Thesz Go

Payoff, Breaks
In News Again

By JACK CONWAY

THE FINISH wrestling bout between Yvon Robert and the brilliant Louis Thesz at the Garden tonight will do much to clear up the muddle that has existed in the heavyweight division.

It was as a result of his failure to collide with Thesz that Robert had his title vacated by the American Wrestling Association. Now that Steve Casey is generally recognized as title holder, Robert readily consented to collide with Thesz.

The winner of the Robert-Thesz match (and I am stringing along with the Frenchman to finish in front) is the logical opponent to send against Casey. The survivor of these two matches would then be looked upon as world's champion.

Robert, 23 years of age, and Thesz, 22 years old, each carry the torch of youth, and should furnish a sensational encounter. I shall be down close to the ring when festivities get under way, and may the better man win.

Mr. Boston

BOXING FANS are comparing Mike Coffey's left hook to that of Charley White, famous lightweight of 20 years ago. White fought many of his greatest fights in Boston, and checked his opponents with short, savage left hooks to the jaw. Many of White's bouts were fought in the old Arena. Jack Britton, using a left jab, finally tied up White's left hook, and gave the Chicago lightweight a boxing lesson.

Coffey is still only an amateur and should keep improving. So far Coffey has shown one of the finest left hooks in the boxing game. The young Irishman's blow only travels five or six inches, and when it lands there is tremendous power behind it.

In his last appearances in this country, Coffey won his Boston and Worcester matches by knockouts. Mike hit with such terrific force that his opponents thought he had a horseshoe concealed in his left glove.

Coffey will return to Boston to participate in the international amateur boxing show at the Garden on May 9. At that time he will be opposed by the leading middleweights in this country and in Canada. George Freeman of the Irish American A. A. has received a cable to the effect the Irish team will sail for this country tomorrow.

THE MATTER of the odds, payoff and breakage have once more bobbed into the racing game. Suffolk Downs announced it would post the odds and payoff on the basis of a dollar rather than on a two dollar basis as has been the custom since racing came into Massachusetts.

This has brought up a discussion of the question of breakage. The law on breakage is as follows:

"One-half of the odd cents over a multiple of ten cents otherwise payable to a patron wagering shall be retained by the licensee, and one-half shall be paid to the Commission, on the day following each day of horse or dog racing meeting. Such odd cents in this chapter shall be called the 'breaks'."

The "breaks" are figured on each $1 wagered, and so when an equal division of the money on a $1 basis would make $1.77 the bettors have been paid off at $1.70 on $1, which would make the total on a $2 ticket $3.40.

It has been contended by some bettors that the $1.77 should be multiplied by the amount of dollars wagered. In that case the return on $2 would be $3.50 and the extra four cents would constitute the "breaks." Under such an interpretation of the law the $100 bettor would get a larger return on each $1 invested than the $2 bettor.

I believe the lawmakers should have eliminated the split of the "breaks" between the association and the state. This money rightfully belongs to the bettor. It would, of course, be inconvenient for the cashiers to make penny change, but such a matter is not entitled to serious consideration. The public has a right to its small change if it wishes it.

The Racing Commission has notified Suffolk Downs that it will not be permitted to change the method of posting odds and prices. It feels that to do so would cause much unnecessary confusion. The commission contends that the public is educated to the system of a $2 payoff price.

If it was posted on the board that the winning horse paid $1.40 on a $1 basis, many of the bettors, the commission contends, would not realize they were entitled to $3.50 for a $2 ticket.

In view of the commission's stand, the old system of posting odds and prices is expected to be in vogue at Suffolk Downs at its grand opening tomorrow. This is the system that is used at other horse and dog tracks in this state.

Floss for Opening at Suffolk

ALL THE floss that goes with a Hialeah opening will feature the start of racing at Suffolk Downs tomorrow afternoon. The event will be a "Who's Who" in society as well as a great sports gathering.

Price Rise Only Key to Recovery

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

Special to Boston Evening American
NEW YORK, April 29—Can business recovery without a general rise in commodity prices?

It is possible; but not probable. The usual type of cyclical recovery in business is always accompanied by rising prices.

This is true because in depressions the prices of raw materials are always too low. When they rise with recovery, other prices generally rise, too.

Of course, it does not follow that prices must rise as high as they were in the preceding boom. In many booms, prices are far too high to be maintained.

WILL BUSINESS RECOVER?

If prices rise now or soon, will business recover?

A rather general and persistent rising trend of prices, not caused by fear or unround currency, would probably indicate business recovery.

But an "inflationary" run-up in prices would merely lead to a speculative boomlet and a collapse. This is proved by all the New Deal inflation spree.

Why don't prices rise now? Why have they been sagging recently? In the first place, there is a lack of demand. This means that many people are afraid to buy goods, or that they are unable to earn the money required.

They could the general price level be made to rise.

There is only one general answer, and that is by increasing demand in relation to supply.

NO INFLATION

In a depression, when money and productive power are not being used normally, it is possible for the general price level to rise without inflation. But this would mean that purchasing power would be earned by real production, and that costs would rise only as necessary.

The other possibility is inflation. The important point for us to note is that there can be no inflation in prices except through an increased demand for goods.

Why, then, are our monetary circulation and our turnover of bank deposits so sluggish? The answer is clear. People lack the confidence and courage that encourage buying, borrowing and investing. So goods do not circulate.

Hopkins Divorces WPA and Politics

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—Administrator Harry Hopkins assured work relief collectors today that they would not lose their jobs through political intimidation.

"I intend," he said, "to send out right away a manuscript of 40 syllable words to all WPA enrollees emphasizing that no man will lose his job because of the way he does or does not vote."

Mild Decline For Business Is Forecast

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Financial Editor

The question of whether or not business activity is to undergo a further decline should be satisfactorily answered in the next two weeks. As the oversigned sees conditions some further losses will take place. However, they should be minor in extent. If only because of prevailing low levels, and they will represent a final cleaning up of depression debris and not the initiation of a new major collapse.

Stocks Cut Losses

Stocks succeeded in engineering a timid rally today and early losses were cut down in late trading. Volume was light, with total sales approaching about 600,000 shares.

American Can	84 — 3/4
American Telephone	125 1/2 — 1
Bethlehem Steel	47 1/2 — 1/2
Chrysler	40 1/2 — 1/2
Douglas	42 — 1/2
General Electric	31 1/2 — 1/2
General Motors	29 1/2 — 1/2
N Y Central	12 1/2 — 1/2
U S Steel	42 1/2 — 1/2
Westinghouse	70 1/2 — 1 1/4

There are several excellent reasons for expecting a drift to lower activity levels. In the first place, the natural stimulant of spring buying has worn off. And all it did was prevent a slide to a low, under that of early January. The sideways movement which took place from the middle of February until now must depend on other supports and none can be discerned.

PHYSICAL INDICATORS

Besides the theorizing above, forecasts of physical volume, of which activity indexes are composed, encourage expectation of a drift to lower levels. Further declines in carloadings, automobile production, cotton deliveries, electric power production and possibly steel output appear unavoidable and these have a marked effect on business activity indexes.

Notebook: The industrial world may be experiencing a sharp contraction in earnings but the sports sphere must be escaping unscathed. For we hear that Madison Square Garden will show upwards of $150 per share for the fiscal year ending May 31. . . . Canada Dry drinks Products are (two companies the gossip have down for a better first half this year than last.

BULLS FACE TROUBLE

The bullish faction faced real trouble today. They had to attempt promotion of a rally from around the lows of yesterday or face revolt in their own ranks in the form of liquidation by timid members. They failed to stem opening selling and average prices were carried down by what might have been termed, at another time, minor selling. Some sort of an upturn may be engineered in the near future, but its quality will be open to doubt and we would not follow it.

Our skepticism is based on the fact both the rail and industrial averages have slipped under previous reaction lows. It is a bearish technical indication and can be detracted from only on the basis volume nearly reached the vanishing point. A rally in here to be worth while must be a lively, vigorous affair. And there isn't even an excuse for such a performance.

Dressen To Pilot Dodgers

By BILL GRIMES

Charlie Dressen, ex-manager of the Cincinnati Reds, will be named pilot of the Brooklyn Dodgers in place of Burleigh Grimes in a shakeup that is expected to occur next month.

The play of the Dodgers this season has been unsatisfactory to the management, and it is reported that Grimes will be the one to go.

Waite Hoyt and Hazen "Kiki" Cuyler have some backing to head the Dodgers, but the final selection in the event of a change will find Dressen in charge.

Charlie Dressen promoted Drensen into the Cincinnati berth. He has been a booster of the ex-Red mentor for years. He still is a firm believer that Drensen is a big league manager.

McPhail and Grimes can't miss getting into a serious jam. They are the most cynical figures in baseball.

When they lock horns, Grimes is out for McEhail is the BOSS.

In fact he has the first, last and all of the in between words on everything pertaining to baseball at Ebbets Field.

When Cuyler was signed to a Dodger contract at Celarwater by McPhail, the baseball scribes suspected that Grimes was on his way out.

They knew that McPhail was cleaning house; also that he was set upon operating an organization of his own creation. He didn't pick Grimos as manager of the Dodgers.

Cuyler was only a smoke screen turned loose by McPhail, while the Hoyt angle was created by Walle himself.

BEE'S GAME OFF

The Bees-Giants game today was called off on account of cold weather. The Bees left immediately on a western trip. The Athletics will make their first appearance of the season with the Red Sox tomorrow.
